

Random Shots

One man we really envy is the Rajah of Chambam, whose estate is situated, so the movie press sheets say, in Himalayas, near Kashmir, whatever that is.

He has a private dancing pavilion—a roof garden all his own—and a troop of untrained dancers.

The Rajah of Bhawalpur is just as fortunate.

Next to being a Rajah, we'd as lief own a carnival.

A recent picnic party contained two Corps, two Akers and an undertaker. Plenty of room to bury them.

That one is rather involved. We've written it down just as it was told to us.

Incidentally, should it be spelled P-I-C-N-I-C or P-I-C-N-I-C-S?

We ask to know?

As old man Hebbard once said when they proved it by Webster's: "Well, it ain't right."

An Alliance young lady attended the armory dance the other evening, and met up with a handsome young chap. Girls, he was handsome. He had the nicest hair, dark brown eyes, and he was a perfect gentleman. And such a dancer! She was quite proud of him. But as they danced and talked she became puzzled by his voice. It was terribly husky. She feared that he had a bad cold, but he didn't cough. Finally she asked how come. "It's this way," he explained. "I'm ballyhoo at the carnival, and my voice naturally gets husky." The young lady promptly fainted.

She had planned to introduce him to mother.

TODAY'S BEST STORY

Earnest Reformer—"When I pictured the drunkard's death in a sordid attic, surrounded by empty bottles, my audience was moved to tears!"

Flippant Miss—"I can quite believe it. It's touching to think of the emptiness of those bottles."

THE STATE OF TRADE

(From the June, 1920, issue of "The Furniture Journal.")

No better barometer of trade conditions at the present time could be found than the symposium regarding matters affecting the furniture industry which appears elsewhere in this number.

As the market season is almost at hand, the collection of opinions from both branches of the industry is of utmost importance. Some interesting points are brought to light. In general, manufacturers of furniture are revealed by the questionnaire already referred to as being still considerably behind in filling orders, a situation that has been aggravated by reason of the freight traffic troubles. However, it is encouraging to note that many manufacturers report an improvement in this situation.

Raw materials, according to the reports from manufacturers, are still scarce and hard to obtain, and the prices continue to be at record heights. Lumber, in some instances is reported as being a trifle off, but not in the case of dry stocks which are the most sought after and used by the furniture industry. Dry stocks of all woods are scarcer than ever, and there seems to be little likelihood of a surplus in many months to come.

Dealers for the most part report that business is holding up very well. Broadly speaking, the industry seems to have slowed up but little, if any, over the speed attained immediately after the signing of the armistice, and according to the views of a great number of representatives, manufacturers and dealers the furniture trade is not due for a slump.

HOW TO REPAIR LEE BROOMS

A wonderful treatment that binds up worn or frayed fibers without pain or harm is described in a new book which readers may get free by writing a card or letter to Dr. H. J. Whitaker, Suite 15, 1104 Madison, Kansas City, Mo.

ZEDA-LEE Saves One Broom

There are many ways by which a person can economize. Little ways with little articles of the everyday, very common kind. In the home, for instance, the housewife can save on such an item as a broom. She fully realizes that if she uses a ZEDA-LEE.

With the NEW STYLE LEE BROOM she can cut the sewing after the straw has worn well up, then with the threads removed she still has a flexible broom, good for almost again as much sweeping.

The fibre shield protects the shoulder against breaking. Underneath this shield the patented construction keeps the broom corn in a firm position, and pointed down in a natural way. This is an exclusive feature of the ZEDA-LEE. It saves one broom, and makes the NEW STYLE ZEDA-LEE a double service broom.

2 BROOMS IN 1

Choose a ZEDA-LEE. Sweep with one and find out why thousands of users feel justified in having selected it for permanency in their homes and stores.
