On September 21, there will be held a special election for the purpose of deciding whether the work of the Nebraska constitutional convention shall be accepted or rejected. This is one of the most important elections to be held in years, and yet there is considerable public apathy in connection with it. The average voter is apt to think of constitutional amendments as rather "dry reading," and the result is that few people know very much of the work of the convention or what propositions are to be voted upon. Some of them are rather radical departures from present law. Whether interesting or not, it behooves every voter to find out what the amendments mean, and to decide how to vote on them. Alliance voters are fortunate in having the opportunity to hear a discussion of the proposed amendments by A. J. Weaver, president of the constitutional convention. Mr. Weaver will be in Alliance next Monday evening and will explain the various changes. It will be the best and perhaps the last chance to become informed on propositions that may puzzle you, and Mr. Weaver should be greeted by a crowded house.

The Lincoln newspapers are making a grandstand play this year about the business men of that city being on the square with state fair visitors. To quote from a published notice: "The members of the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce guarantee visitors courteous treatment and square dealing in all business transactions. Realizing that any mistreatment reflects upon the integrity of the city as a whole, visitors will do themselves justice and confer a great favor if they will report immediately to the office of the chamber any act of incivility or alleged overcharge so that any wrong done may be adjusted before the offended party leaves the city." This sort of thing reads well, and we are curious to learn whether it works out. In other years, the first day of the state fair has seen the restaurants, hotels and stores raise their prices from 20 to 100 per cent. We wonder whether the stores raise their prices from 20 to 100 per cent. We wonder whether this "fair play" spiel really amounts to anything, or do Lincoln business men still get theirs while the getting is good?

Candidate Cox, in his Labor day speech at the Minnesota state fair, has put himself squarely on record on a number of points concerning which the labor union members have been curious. There is this about Mr. Cox: it isn't difficult to discover where he stands. In addition to promising that he would, if elected, sign a bill granting the "long suffering and loyal postal employees the relief they so richly deserve in the way of adequate wages," he has this to say about the unions themselves: "Labor should have the right to organize, and through representatives of their own choosing negotiate collective bargaining. This right has never been denied capital. Care must be exercised that government no time be made oppressive in maintaining the laws of the land. I have said that public opinion will settle industrial disputes, and to this end believe the government should provide for proper investigation in all cases, with provision for the filing of the facts without prejudice, so that the public may have full information. The right to free speech and free press and the right of orderly assembly, guaranteed by the constitution, must never be infringed."

Five autoloads of Alliance people went to Scottsbluff yesterday for the big day of the sugar beet festival. Those who drove the cars were V. E. Byrne, E. G. Laing, W. R. Harper, P. E. Romjg and Clarence Schafer, and among the passengers were H. P. Coursey, Harling, Frank Bronkhorst, R. C. Gladson, Dr. G. J. Hand and others. N. O. Robbins was another visitor. The chief interest centered in the boxing match between Fred Parks and Manley. Parks was in Alliance high school football star a few years ago. Even at that time he was noted as a crabbler, with a tendency to scrap whenever things didn't go to suit him. He exhibited this sort of form at Scottsbluff, two times hitting the referee, the last time knocking him against the ropes. The decision was given to Manley, in spite of the fact that Parks continually insisted that he had been fouled. Manley had everything his way in the battle, the Alliance fans say. A preliminary between Kid Williams and Little Potato was said to be exceedingly good, as was the battle royal. The ball game was a fast one, with Casper getting the long end of the score.

Scottsbluff Star-Herald: James Wilkerson of this city and Mrs. Mary Williams of Alliance were united in marriage on last Sunday evening at the African Methodist church, Rev. F. J. McCaffree officiating. "Jim" has been a resident of this city for the past dozen years or so, and has always had an excellent reputation as an industrious and reliable citizen. The bride has been a resident of Alliance for several years and is a woman who also bears an excellent reputation. They will make their home in this city.

Come on the 15th if you can, but don't get here later than the 16th for the Omaha to Crawford airplane race finishes at Crawford on the afternoon of the 16th. Come prepared to stay over for the 17th and 18th. Write for program. 82
