While the democratic and republican state campaign committees have been buying newspaper space and getting practically all the free publicity, the non-partisan leaguers have been using the one method that is more effective than publicity—personal solicitation. Just how much of this has been done is a question for the leaguers are not making any claims. They are saving their breath to win votes, and our guess is that when the votes are counted all of us will have a feeling of surprise. We trust that they will not have votes enough to put across any of their candidates, especially for state officers, but it is not without the range of possibility. The newspapers over the state generally are not helping the non-partisan league, are careful not to be liberal in free advertising or publicity, but all the same the work is going on. Reports reach The Herald from three good counties in different parts of the state, and in each of these careful political observers say they expect a strong non-partisan vote. In these counties, several precincts are already conceded. In Box Butte county, the non-partisan movement has been considered negligible, but a number of the railroad men are behind the petition candidates. In this election, as in most others, it will be the part of wisdom not to count votes until they are cast.

Last week The Herald published a small advertisement from the republican state campaign committee, which gives the figures on pardons, paroles and furloughs issued by Governors McKelvie and Morehead. Figures, while imposing sometimes, do not show the true state of affairs. During the McKelvie administration it isn't the number of paroles, pardons and furloughs that have been issued, but the men who have received them. Take the case of Kirk, convicted as an accessory to the murder of an Omaha policeman; take the case of Dinsmore, the double murderer; take the Cole-Grammer cases. These men have not been pardoned, but after a dozen reprieves the execution of these two despicable creatures has become a public joke. The pardoning power was intended for use. The more men who can safely be set at liberty, the better for the state. Morehead used the pardoning power more often, but with greater intelligence. He did not use it to oblige a couple of agreeable attorneys.
