

CYRUS SIXBERRY BAYARD HOLMES

Trails Alleged Auto Bandit To Denver and Identifies Him in True Movie Style

The guilty will stand a poor show of escaping from the strong arm of the law while Cyrus Sixberry, formerly pioneer and cow puncher of western Nebraska and now deputy sheriff of Morrill county, stands watch and ward at his outpost in Bayard. Cyrus is a rather quiet and unassuming old fellow, whose hair has grown gray with many winters of life, but whose vigilance and eye sight are just as good as they were when he hunted brands on range cattle a decade and a half ago, and to prove this he has just recently done the Sherlock Holmes act to perfection by trailing a Mexican bandit to his lair in Denver and encompassing his arrest on charge of being one of the men who murdered Officer Lingren a few weeks ago, says the Bayard Exchange.

In Cyrus' late drama of detective life there were the fleeing criminal the traditional scar that led to the culprits apprehension, and all of the other settings that went to make the affair in keeping with the best authorities on real sleuthing. A Mexican who was known to have had a hand in the recent shooting was missing, and was wanted by the Morrill county authorities to complete their case against murderers who are now being held for trial. Hence, there was nothing for Cyrus to do but to go and "get" him, which he did without delay. The story is well told in the following account appearing in a recent issue of the Denver Post:

"A scar above the left eye led to the arrest of Ygasie Guerrero, 18 years old, a Mexican, at twelfth and Larimer streets, Sunday afternoon by Patrolman M. W. McDonald and Deputy Sheriff Cyrus Sixberry of Morrill county, Nebraska. The prisoner is believed to be one of the gang who shot and killed John Lingren, deputy sheriff and seriously wounded chief of police, A. M. Webb, both of Bayard, Neb., in a revolver battle at Bayard, October 16.

"Sixberry says the two men were shot when they stopped an auto which had been stolen in a nearby town. The occupants of the machine opened fire and then fled.

"One of the men in the machine, an unidentified Mexican, was wounded and is in a serious condition in a hospital at Bayard. Sixberry, who was with Webb and Lingren at the time of the shooting, trailed Guerrero to Denver."

THE BULK OF INCOMES.

Here is something for you to think about. There is a popular belief among the large class of citizens that the great bulk of all wealth of the nation goes into coffers of a small number of rich men. Mr. Otto Kahn, the New York, and who is an intense student of economic affairs, combats this. In a recent address before the Massachusetts Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Kahn makes the statement that about seven-eighths of our national income goes to people with incomes of $5,000 a year and under. Says Mr. Kahn: "A carefully compiled statement issued by the Bankers Trust company of New York, some eighteen months ago estimates the total individual incomes of the nation for the fiscal year ending July 30, 1919, at $33,000,000,000, and finds that families with incomes of $5,000 or less received $46,000,000,000 of that total." The total incomes, for families making above $5,000 per year was $7,000,000,000, and would amount to a little less than $46 per capita of population of the country—that is, estimating the total population at 110,000,000.—Souix City Record.

THE PASSING THROUG

The native of New York had brot his Ozark cousin to see the sights. Together they gazed to the cloud-swept upper stories of the Woolworth building, mounted the Statue of Liberty, and did the weird curb market. Finally they stood at the corner of Fifth avenue and Forty-second street, waiting for a chance to dodge the long procession of automobiles and throngs of pedestrians.

The Ozarkian calmly watched them hustling thousands. Then he turned to his friends.

"Picnic in town?" he inquired.

THE VERY EARLY BIRD

"Now, then, my hearties," said the gallant captain, "you have a tough battle before you. Fight like heroes till your powder is gone; then run. I'm a little lame, and I'll start now."—The Stars and Stripes.

The United States is investigating the universal disarmament question, probably with a view of finding out which nation is to keep enough armament to compel the other nations to abide by the agreement.

He holds his expenses within his income, and thus enjoys what is ordinarily called "good times."

The "checking man" is always a man of credit, for he is known as a man who keeps an account of his dollars. We serve those who want to have money and credit.
