NEW COUNTERFEIT $20 NOTE

Another counterfeit $20 note is in circulation. The federal reserve bank describes it as drawn on the Federal Reserve bank of Kansas City, bears the check letter C and a portrait of Cleveland, with the names of W. G. McAloo, secretary of the treasury, and John Burke, treasurer of the United States.

"This counterfeit is printed from photographic plates, on two pieces of paper between which a few silk threads have been distributed," says the warning. "The pasting together of the maker makes the bill too thick. It is also about a half inch shorter than the genuine. The number of this counterfeit is J2990600A. The back of the note is blue instead of green. "Altogether the counterfeit is so plainly a photograph that it should not deceive those accustomed to handling money."—Omaha Trade Exhibit.
