

AT THE CHURCHES

Baptist Church
A green-eyed monster sneaked in the Baptist church Sunday morning and evening to see what he could do to make life miserable for the nearly three hundred people there in the morning and over that number in the evening and a royal battle ensued. The pastor spied the culprit and putting on the helmet of wit and taking the sword of humor in his right hand he vanquished the foe of laughter, and, listen—folks actually laughed in church—right out in open meeting. Can you hear it?

High places in Sunday's services: The two hundred mark has been attained in the Sunday school; the greatest collection yet; a forward congregation at both hours; six forward at the morning services, four forward and two letters. Thus the work continues. Let us be thankful and keep praying for greater things await us.

The pastor preaches his series of three sermons on "The Fatal Spot" at the Salvation Army hall Thursday to Saturday. Will we have seventy-five at prayer meeting Wednesday? It's up to you to say.

Come to the church where folks are happy. B. J. MINORT, Pastor.

Legion Favors The Reed Amendment to Norval Language Bill

When Senator Norval introduced a bill into the state legislature which nullified to a great extent the Siman language law, which the American Legion pledged to support at their last state convention, the ex-service organization immediately started out to kill the new bill. Led by the legion post at Seward, Senator Norval's home town, and by department and post officials over the entire state, a strong fight has been waged against the measure. An amendment known as the Reed amendment to the Norval bill, has been prepared and submitted for the committee's action. The legion is closely behind the amendment and is closely watching the attitude of each individual legislator upon the measure.

In a letter given out by Robert G. Simmons of Scottsbluff, department commander of the legion, he says: "The strongest Americanization measure before the Nebraska legislature is the Reed amendment to Senator Norval's bill. The legion is right behind it. The bill does not interfere with religious worship in German; it merely prevents a centralized body excluding English and supplanting it with German contrary to the desire of loyal citizens who wish to speak English. There can be no legitimate opposition to a law forbidding discrimination against or excluding the use of the language of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln."

Movie Censorship Bills Come Up In House This Week

During the present week, the movie censorship bill, H. R. 113, and the Gifford-Byrum bill, H. R. 123, which aims at the suppression of improper films through activities of local officers, will emerge from the "child welfare" committee of the house and take their place together on the general file. They will probably be made a special order to be considered together.

These two bills are directly opposed to each other in principle, though both aim at the same evil. The chief objections to the censorship bill all along have been that it creates a lot of new jobholders for the people to support, that it would open up opportunities for official graft and favoritism, and that a censorship is in conflict with American ideas of free speech, a free press, and free expression.

Under the Gifford-Byrum bill, in its amended form, local officers are to be held responsible for enforcement of strict provisions against indecent or improper exhibitions, whether on the stage or by means of motion pictures. They may be removed for non-performance of their duty, upon complaint of the state department of public welfare. The act applies to mayors and chairmen of village trustees, sheriffs, police officers and constables, county and municipal attorneys.

It was agreed by members of the "child welfare" committee to place the two measures before the house and "let 'em fight it out." The committee itself was about equally divided as between the two. Petitions for and against censorship have been flooding the legislature since the opening of the session.

RANDOM SHOTS

The seven-day stretch from February 28 to March 5 this year has been set apart by the enterprising needle, thread and textile manufacturers as "sewing week." If we had nothing else to do, we might get ours repaired.

Heretofore we have always considered a "wimpus" a fabulous animal, like the jabberwock or the Alliance Packing company, but we see that some medical manufacturer is recommending a "split wimpus." There should be legislation.

A horse is a tolerably strong animal, but if we remember Prof. Barker correctly, its blood contains just one part of iron in seventy thousand. Therefore, when you read of taking iron for the blood, snicker silently and pass on. It's the bunk.

The Nebraska City Press says a girl in that town is so thin that when she drinks coca-cola in the summertime folks think she is a thermometer.

If there is ever a vacancy in the high school de-lective force, we hope our application will be considered. It must be interesting work—and we've grown used to living on a small salary.

Even the bootleggers have professional pride, it seems. The last one takes exceptions to the publicity. A big, strong newspaper ought to be ashamed to pick on an unfortunate hooch salesman.

But the most remarkable feature is that the first thing a lawbreaker thinks of is to invoke the law to protect him.

The best joke of the week is on the writer of these lines, but, thank heaven, we can't be forced to incriminate us.

That's one consolation for the labor of writing this delightfully interesting column: We have the say as to what goes in it.

Funny thing, but we haven't been offered stewed carrots since Friday.

Which leads us to remark that calling plain mashed potatoes "whipped" doesn't make them taste a bit better.

We're losing faith in Marcus Frankie. Three times he stood with us against Perc, but yesterday his unerring judgment went back on him.

Little reminder for today: Only fourteen days left in which to file that income tax report.

We had a piece of good fortune the other day. We saw a whole five-reel movie without a single California bathing beauty.

If we live long enough, we may see Gladys Brockwell in an interesting play.

Want a Little Bison In Your Home—Uncle Sam Giving Them Away

The forest service of the United States department of agriculture has more than 20 male buffalo of varying size and age, which it desires to give away or loan to park or zoological associations or responsible individuals who will take good care of them and use them for breeding or exhibition purposes.

The buffalo herd, established on the Wichita National forest and game preserve, Oklahoma, some fifteen years ago with a nucleus of fifteen animals, has prospered mightily. They now number nearly 150 head, including the 28-year-old "gray gander" of the herd as well as the smallest and friskiest bull calf born last spring. As the herd has grown the number of bulls has increased more rapidly than the cows, until now there are too many of the former.

Under the regulations the forest service can give or lend only one male buffalo to an individual or institution. Several applications have already been received and approved, and plans are on foot to cut from the herd the animals selected, and crate and haul them to the railroad.

Although Uncle Sam is willing to make a present of these animals, the recipient must pay all expenses incident to the gift, including the cost of crating, hauling and freight charges from Cache, Okla., to the point of delivery.

Here is an excellent opportunity to get a real, live buffalo—not as gentle, perhaps, as a kitten, but, nevertheless, a nice pet if you have plenty of room to keep him, surrounded by a 12-foot double-hy, woven-wire fence, and the price of two tons of hay a year.

C. S. Mooney Sells His Bakery to Two Men From Kansas

The C. S. Mooney bakery was yesterday sold to Gillespie Bros., of Oswattomie, Kan., and the new proprietors will assume the control of the business beginning March 10. The Kansas men have had considerable experience in the bakery business, and plan to greatly extend the scope of the Alliance plan. They will endeavor to build up the wholesale trade and capture a good share of the trade in the surrounding towns that now goes to Denver firms. Modern and up-to-date machinery will be installed, and a number of improvements made.

W. L. Caton and son, J. H. Caton, were the men who put through the deal. The latter now owns a bakery in the Kansas city. Mr. Mooney has not as yet decided as to what he will do, but his present plans are to go to the south.

There is no pleasure in driving a car that does not "work" smoothly. You can't get fun from driving with tires that blow out or have slow leaks; starters that will not turn the motor over; or batteries that won't charge or retain their vigor.

If you want your car for business purposes it is all the more imperative that it can be depended on. Business trips that wind up with costly delays and various repair bills are unprofitable, to say nothing of the wear and tear on the nerves.
