AMERICAN LEGION NOTES

The first call for reservations at the national convention of the American Legion in Kansas City, Mo., next fall, comes from Lewis F. Tuttle Post No. 54 of Anthony, Kan., and the request is for reservations for every member of the post. Anthony boasts a membership of 97 per cent of the eligible men in the community; even reaching across the line and drawing a number from Oklahoma into its fold.

A warning to American legion post officers against using the influence of the legion to obtain postmasterships and other political appointments has been made by H. B. Fell, commander of the Oklahoma department of the ex-service man's organization. The legion commander declared that there is no attempt to curtail the efforts of legionnaires as individuals, but that activities tending to involve the legion in politics are contrary to the constitution of that organization.

American Indians who served in the world war are lining up with the American legion, according to applications for post charters received at national headquarters. An application for a post at St. Charles, S. D., bears the name of four Sioux Indians, who sign themselves: Benjamin Comes-Out Bear, Charles Owl Wais-In The House, Narcisse MacKenzie and John Bluebird.

No stone is being left unturned by the American legion, acting through its national legislative committee, to get Grover Cleveland Bergdoll back to this country and to obtain the release from a German jail of the two American sergeants, Zimmer and Naef," declared John Thomas Taylor, vice chairman of the legion's legislative committee.

There is hardly a man in the American legion who does not so feel the ignominy of the Bergdoll situation but that if called upon, would gladly join a posse to get Bergdoll and release the two sergeants. Since that, however, is neither practical nor possible, we are working in every way possible to effect the same results through regular channels.

The national executive committee of the legion has demanded that something be done by the government and I have transmitted its request to the secretary of war. The Paris post of the American legion raised funds for counsel to defend the two sergeants and otherwise stood valiantly behind them. The entire organization of the legion is a unit in demanding that some final chapter be written to this Bergdoll mess and that it be a chapter unlike those which have preceded it, of which red-blooded Americans need not be ashamed.

An American legion man returning from a trip through Oklahoma brings the report that the southern states, like Nebraska, is experiencing a wave of patriotism and Americanism prompted by the activities of foreign propagandists. Three Americanism bills written by the American Legion and passed by the Oklahoma legislature have been signed by Governor Robertson and will become laws on June 25. One bill provides that the American flag shall be displayed in every school room in the state, both public and private, and that the pupils shall be taught proper respect for it by ceremonies to be prescribed by the state superintendent of schools.

All teachers must take an oath of allegiance to the constitution of the United States and of the state of Oklahoma under the terms of another legion bill. Teachers convicted of disloyal statements may be removed.

American history and government are made compulsory studies in all public and private schools under the third Americanism law. No college or university may issue a diploma to a graduate unless he shall have completed at least one year of American history and civil government.

With their own state legislative efforts well on their way to successful consummation, Nebraska legionnaires are turning their attention to the legion's national program for the relief of the disabled veterans of the world war. F. W. Galbraith, national commander, has issued an appeal to all patriotic citizens to bring pressure to bear on congress for the passage of this badly needed legislation. The measures which the legion is backing in the special session of congress are the Rodgers-Capper, Wason, Steverson and Kenyon-Fess bills.

The Rodgers-Capper bill provides for the consolidation of the bureau of war risk insurance, public health service and rehabilitation division of the federal board for vocational education, under one head in the treasury department. The adoption of a definite three-to-five year program for building new hospitals for disabled men, involving an appropriation of $25,000,000 is also included.

Decentralization of the bureau of war risk insurance by establishment of fourteen regional branch offices, is the principle feature of the Wason bill. Relief of disabled veterans in hospitals or vocational training from payment of premiums and provision for ex-service men to pay premiums or re-instate insurance at all post offices are likewise provided for.

Disabled emergency officers of the world war would have the same privilege of retirement on three-fourths pay as now enjoyed by officers of the regular army if the Steverson bill should be passed.

The Kenyon-Fess bill amends the vocational training act to provide vocational training for Americans disabled in allied armies, vocational training with maintenance pay for disabled men awarded ten per cent disability rating by the work risk bureau or suffering from vocational handicap and vocational training for war widows and orphans.

Vets Help to Quash Cash Bonus Bill in the Nebraska House

With the aid of American Legion members, the Nebraska house of representatives last week defeated the state bonus bill by a vote of 46 to 40, thereby reversing its action of the previous week. The bill provided for a referendum on the proposition to pay to each former service man or woman of the state $15 for each month of service during the world war.

Representatives Anderson, Griswold, Hascall, Westerhoff, Douglas, Bowman and Reed, all members of the Legion, issued the following statement explaining their votes against the measure:

"We are voting 'No' for the following reasons: First, the bill as drawn would do the returned soldier but little good. After the act goes into effect it will be a year before any taxes are collected and money available. At that time there will be $1,000,000 to divide up between more than 50,000 soldiers, which would mean that each man would get about $20. Each year thereafter he would get $20 until he received his bonus. It is estimated that there are more than 50,000 service men in the state and the average length of service was fifteen months, which at the rate of $15 per month would make a total bonus of about $11,250,000. Thus it is seen that some men would not get the last of their bonus for eleven years after the first payment. This method of payment, of course, would do the service men but little good.

"Second, While we disclaim any promises that the American Legion would be against the bonus bill, yet we individually feel that inasmuch as the house has so unanimously approved the soldiers' relief bill which will require the raising of $2,000,000 by taxation, we do not feel that we should go on record as being in favor of a bonus bill at this session. We vote 'No'."

AT THE MOVIES

The attraction at the Imperial this evening is "The Fortune Teller," with Marjorie Rambeau. The press agent has bewildered us this time by making the advertising for his play consist largely of a number of charms, spells and incantations that lift the veil from the secrets of the future. These are all interesting, and one or two of them are instructive. For instance, if a shy maiden desires to dream of the man she will marry, all that is necessary is to place the twig of a maple tree in her stocking, lay it under her pillow and just before going to sleep repeat the following word; some of them are hard to pronounce, but do the best you can: "Kyrios clementissime qui Abraham seruo tuo dedisti uxorem Saram et filio eius obedientissimo per admirabile signum indicasti Rebecam uxorem; indica mihi ancillae tuae, quem sine nuptura virum per ministerium tuorum, spiritum Balideth, Assabi, Abumalith."

Pauline Frederick is at her best in "The Woman in Room 13," scheduled for the Imperial Wednesday. Her former husband had sworn to make her pay for her divorce. He laid his plans for the compromising situation that would blacken her reputation in the eyes of the man she loved—and married. When the smoke of murder cleared away—the woman had escaped! Who was the woman in Room 13? Was it the wife? Was it one of the other victims of Dick Turner. The odds are a thousand to one that you cannot guess who the woman was.

Constance Talmadge in "The Perfect Woman" will be shown Thursday. It is the story of Mary Blake, who vamps her way into the home of Jimmy Stanhope, multi-millionaire, and woman-hater, bringing a series of amusing and pleasantly thrilling incidents into one of the most novel climaxes ever witnessed.

American Legion to Assist in Distribution of Victory Medals

Only about one-fourth of the 55,000 ex-service men in Nebraska have received their victory medals, and American legion posts will be asked to assist in a big drive to distribute the remainder.

The war department has announced that despite vigorous efforts by the army recruiting service and the legion, less than 1,500,000 victory medals have so far been issued to the four and one-half million men entitled to them. As a result the secretary of war has authorized a new drive to distribute the remaining 3,000,000 and the appointment of twenty-four army officers to devote their entire time to the project.

Col. Charles H. Martin, until recently in charge of army recruiting activities, is directing the campaign. He has divided the country into six regional districts, with an officer in charge of the distribution in each, and a determined effort will be made to establish contact with every veteran of the world war who is yet without his medal.
