

Steady Market is the Greatest Need of the Cattle Men

The greatest need of the live stock men is a stabilized market, Dean E. A. Burnett of the Nebraska college of agriculture told agricultural editors at a meeting here Thursday preliminary to the annual meeting of the Nebraska Live Stock Feeders' association, held at the state farm Friday.

All the experimental herds at the college except the baby beef show a loss ranging from $3.81 a head in the case of yearlings to $35.28 on one lot of 10 2-year-olds. Corresponding losses are said to have been suffered by farmers generally through slumps in the market.

"Feeders operating on a falling market inevitably face a loss," said Dean Burnett, "and this has been the case for practically two years. No one is able to foresee when the bottom will be reached, and I fear we have not yet quite reached it.

"When values become stable, costs can be calculated with reasonable safety. The man who takes six months or a year to prepare animals for the market can't be rightly expected to stand meeting an unfavorable market on his whole year's work. Enormous losses on cattle feeding drive men from the industry and shorten up the food supply. If something can be done to stabilize the market and prevent the fluctuations from day to day and week to week, it would be an immense aid to the farmer even if it only standardized prices and did not increase prices.

"I can see no stimulation of the market until labor is once more given employment, thus broadening the demand."

The man who breeds his own stock Dean Burnett said, is on a safer basis than the one who buys stock. Eighty-five per cent of the corn grown must be marketed through live stock in order to keep the price of corn from falling, he declared.

Auto License Fees Are to be Split Between the County and State

A considerable amount of interest has been felt in this portion of the state with reference as to just what the legislature planned to do with the auto tax money, and in fact there having been a memorial or two sent from this region to the lawmakers concerning the question.

The policy of the legislature in regard to use of road funds was settled when the senate in committee of the whole recommended the passage of H. R. 345 without amendment. A fight was made on the division and use of automobile license fees, known as the highway fund, but the bill as it came from the house was accepted without change. It is a bill that was introduced in the house after the state department of public works had conferred with county boards, county clerks and county treasurers. The county officers gave the bill their endorsement.

The bill as it came from the house requires county treasurers to pay 31 per cent of automobile fees to the state to pay expenses of administration of the motor vehicle law. It provides that the state department after conferring with county boards in regard to the amount needed for a year to maintain the state highways, shall make out a budget for such expenditures, not more than 75 per cent of the motor vehicle fees to be set aside by the county treasurers for maintenance of state and federal roads, known as state and federal aid roads. The balance in the highway fund in county treasurers shall be credited to the road dragging and equipment fund and for no other road purpose.

Minatare Man Expects to Retain Possession of "Soaked" Overcoat

A letter received from a woman at present employed at an eating house in Alliance, addressed to Manager K. P. Grier of the R. S. Proudfoot company asks if he is still in possession of a certain overcoat which was put up with him some time ago as security by a man giving his name as "Dr. Spalding," says the Minatare Free Press.

The letter aroused unpleasant memories in the mind of Mr. Grier. It will be recalled that a bad check artist, traveling under the name of Dr. Spalding, secured some merchandise and a small amount of cash from Mr.

Grier a few weeks ago on a check. A little later during the same day, and before the man had left town, Mr. Grier insisted that Spalding give him some security on the check. Spalding thereupon left his overcoat, promising to return for it the next day, but he has not been seen or heard of from that day to this, and in the meantime Mr. Grier had disposed of the coat, to Marshal Fred Conklin, who is now wearing it when occasion demands and who will probably not be overly enthusiastic about giving it up to any woman from Alliance or anywhere else.
