J. O. BAYNE TO COVER COUNTY FOR THE HERALD

but politics with him. He is also a believer in the spud and is planting 100 acres. He says that they are the best crop to raise for a money crop as he raises from one hundred to a hundred and twenty-five bushels to the acre.

From Mr. Walker's we guided our flivver to the beautiful home of J. F. Spatman, who owns three hundred and twenty-five acres of fine land with very fine improvements that he has built in the last three years. He is farming one hundred and sixty and pastures the balance. He also is planting twenty-five acres of potatoes. He took us to his potato cellar, the first we had ever been in, and it was a sight for us. It will hold about three thousand bushels. One of the best things we saw on this farm and one that is of the greatest interest to a builder was a cement floor in his crib and granary. The cement floor has not been very successful, because of the dampness, but Mr. Spatman has overcome this by building up with dirt and packing it down so as not to settle and then made his cement floor on this dirt, which is about ten inches thick, and he is not bothered with dampness on the bottom of his granary, and that is not all, for the weight of the granary and the grain is on the cement and does not hurt the building. Mr. Spatman tells us that the cement did not cost as much as the wood floor would have cost. We spent a very pleasant hour with Mr. Spatman.

We could not stay longer with one friend, although we would like to, for we realize that we have a big job on our hands if we see all the farmers in this great county of Box Butte, so coaxed our flivver to the next farm, that of Leopold Kastner, where there were more surprises for the weary traveler from the east.

Mr. Kastner moved here from Iowa three years ago and bought four hundred and eighty acres of as good land as there is to be had any place. He is one of the most up-to-date farmers we have seen in years. He has three good boys to do the field work and Mr.

Kastner does all his repair work from blacksmithing to bricklaying and he has every kind of tool and machine that a farmer can use. He has a threshing rig, a shredder, a truck, a tractor, and they are all in the best of shape, and that is not all, for he has the best horses we have seen so far, for they are all recorded and as fine as one could wish. He also has recorded Holstein cows. After looking over his stock he took us to see his potato cellar and it was in keeping with the other things on the farm. It holds seven thousand bushels and can unload eight wagons at once. We think that is some cellar. He showed us one pile of spuds that beat anything we have seen in our short stay on this globe and we have stayed some moons at that. For size and quality they could not be beat, and there were two hundred and twenty-five bushels in the pile and they were grown from two sacks of seed. Mr. Kastner says he can make more money here in one year than he could in Iowa in three with the same amount of capital invested, which speaks well for this country.

Thursday morning we drove the flivver out nine miles northeast of town to the home of T. J. Lawrence, who kindly consented to drive us in that neighborhood. While there we met and had a nice visit with his father, John Lawrence, who homesteaded there thirty-four years ago. He has bought and sold several quarter sections of land when he could buy them for two and three hundred dollars per quarter. He still owns three quarters of good land, but he can tell some tales of hardships, of drought and dust storms, but both Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence have stood the hardships and are looking well for their advanced age. They are both in their seventy-seventh year. That should prove to our younger generation that hardships and privation will not hurt anyone, but will win out in the end.

Our next stop was at the home of the Rev. B. L. Kline, who is running a farm of seven hundred and forty acres. Two hundred and forty are in crop and the balance in pasture. Mr. Kline came to this country one year ago from Miles City, Mont., where he had a charge in a Christian church. He seems to take to farming as though he liked it, but said he should be preaching. We have a very pleasant visit with him.

After leaving Mr. Kline, we trekked along the great highway and we came to the home of E. A. Hurbert, who lives nine miles north of town. Mr. Hurbert has been in this country for thirty-four years, and owns five hundred and sixty acres of land and has seen it advance from $150 per quarter to $60 per acre. He is farming 150 acres all alone, but he does not think it pays to hire much help. He thinks mixed farming pays the best, but is planting thirty acres of potatoes this year. Before we had talked with Mr. Hurbert more than a few minutes, we were invited to the house to dinner—and say, if anyone who reads this ever gets a chance to sample Mrs. Hurbert's cooking, do not pass it up. It made us think of home and mother. We think now that we may happen along that way some other time.

Our last stop for the day was with Otto Metz, who was born here thirty-two years ago and owns 480 acres of good land and is farming it. He purchased this for about $8 per acre and now it is worth about $50. He is another believer in mixed farming, with a good lot of spuds.

Body of Suicide Sent to Relatives at Creston, Iowa

CITY MANAGER'S CORNER

We are negotiating for the sale of the water extension bonds and will probably be able to announce the sale of these in the next few days.

There are a few places about the city where the area ways could be better protected and the property owners are showing a fine spirit of cooperation by having them put in a safer condition.

We are putting the cemetery in good condition and are taking care of the extra material accumulated during the winter.

Tonight we expect to hold a committee meeting of the volunteer firemen looking towards improving the working condition of this department.

We have concluded not to lease the city farm this season but may take a limited number of stock to pasture by the month instead. We have already made some improvements out there and contemplate making more in the future.
