It may be granted that some of the alleged comic artists can draw pictures and salaries, but it still remains one of life's little mysteries how they ever drew laughs.

The world is acting as if it had gumballs and tonsillitis, instead of as if it had a crop to make and a soul to save.

A Boston jurist wants the word "gent" eliminated from our language. Still, there are men no other appellation will fit.

RANDOM SHOTS

A Newark man carried home to his lairing wife a white carnation wreath which was inscribed: "To my beloved wife from her loving husband." So far, so good. On his arrival home, after bestowing his gift, he tried to kill her with a hatchet.

A good punster could make a wheeze out of this. We suggest either "killing with kindness" or "say it with flowers," and you may work it out at your leisure to suit yourself.

ALIBI ISAAC

Peterson, coming in late, hears his wife move in bed; so he swiftly moves to the cradle and begins to rock it.

"What are you doing there?" asks his wife.

"Hush!" says Peterson, "I am keeping the baby asleep. It woke up an hour or so ago and I have been by it ever since."

"Indeed!" replied Mrs. Peterson, "that's strange! Baby has been in bed with me."

The country is getting into a fearful shape when the Salvation Army authorities have to issue an order forbidding the lassies to wear their skirts higher than seven inches above the ground.

POTTER'S POET

The attention of Leo and Gatenby, Chadron's poet laureate and his sidekick, is respectfully directed to the following lines from the bard of Potter. The Chadron men will please note that the poetical feet truck without sacrifice of sense:

One by one the days they pass,
One by one the hours they fade,
Slimmer grows my purse—alas!
Cash—I have none, I'm afraid.
Sadly then I sit and wait;
Wait for springtime's happy hours,
Ice is hard to masticate—
I would rather dine on flowers.

The Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, according to figures recently given out by the Imperial wizard, during the year 1921 distributed more than a million dollars in charity. Perhaps this includes the salaries of officers and organizers.

The bureau of the census has figured it out that women in the United States live longer than the men. Which reminds us of the married men who were told that married men live longer than their wives. "No," he commented, in a hopeless tone, "we don't live longer; it only seems that way."

Incidentally, the census figures show that women in the rural districts live longer than onyx else. Where are the reformers who are always spouting about the poor, downtrodden farmers' wives?

TODAY'S BEST STORY.

"The big bum," explained the shrimp for the benefit of a group of friends, "the big bum was standing on the corner when I passed by with several ladies. He saw me and I said to him in passing: 'Don't speak to me in public, I said, 'because if you do I'll just bust your face on the sidewalk.'"

But the same big bum happened to overhear the shrimp relating the incident.

"You said all this to me in passing?" he demanded threateningly.

"Y-y-yes," stammered the shrimp.

"But we were passing in a car at about fifty miles an hour."

A county officer started to tell us some good joke that his wife got off on him, but right in the middle of it decided that it was entirely too clever and proceeded to forget. If it were a witness under examination who did the forgetting, wouldn't there be a roar?

One local crowned head is reported to be worrying.

Worry is as good as a diet for reusing, the medical authorities say. Only place it won't reduce a swelling is in the dome.

Irv. Cobb has collected a lot of jokes and has had them copyrighted. One Nebraska newspaper is making a daily feature of them. If some of those jokes had been copyrighted the day they were first sprung, the rights would have expired before George Washington knew there was a Delaware. We don't object to an author's copyrighting original stuff, but there ought to be some way to save all those old wheezes from becoming exclusive.

Add to list of inexpensive amusements: Keeping an eye on the show-cases for the photographers. The scenery is changed as often as twice a week, sometimes.

Huff, Daland & Co., who manufacture aeroplanes, flying boats, motor boats and small craft of various sorts, have written in to our information department, wanting our valuable opinion as to the market for aeroplanes in Box Butte county the coming summer. If anyone desires to tell them the truth, we'll gladly give the address. We haven't had the heart to say it.

At that, Jimmie Maxfield might buy a flying boat.

DEEP STUFF.

(Scottsbluff Star-Herald)

A razing who had accompanied a stock train met a friend the other evening and overheard the start of what we thought was going to be a real story. "I got off at the depot an' went home an' the first thing I noticed was some blood spots on the kitchen floor. An' then I see how everything was mused up, so that gave me a kind of a start, and I dropped everything and went on into the living room and there was my wife stretched out on the floor, plum unconscious, with a club by'n' alongside her where somebody had knocked her cold. It certainly was a terrible thing.

"Here I pile off the train all tired out after bein' in Kansas City wrestling them sheep to market, and—"

"What did the sheep bring?" inquired the friend.

PROPRIETY.

The gray Lothario, having been asked to sing, approached the careful girl.

"Will you accompany me on the piano?" he asked.

"Not without a chaperon," answered the careful girl.

Because she was a very, very careful girl.

In The MOVIES

The feature photoplay at the Imperial tonight will be "The Man From Lost River," which is a repeat showing of a film that pleased spectators yesterday. The cast includes House Peters, Fritz Brunette and Allan Forrest, and the story deals with the trials of a lumber camp foreman who stands by the girl he loves when she is married to a weak nephew of a millionaire. The play is well cast and the working out of the plot provides some fine opportunities for House Peters, who finally is rewarded for his faithfulness in the manner which he considers most fitting.

"The Millionaire" is the film attraction for Saturday, in addition to the usual four acts of vaudeville. Herbert Rawlinson takes the part of Jack Norman, whose mother was once loved by Sllas Gyle, multimillionaire, so Jack going home after being fired from a bookkeeper's job reads of the rich man's death and learns that he is heir to the miser's earthy millions. A black hand gang had killed Gyle because he refused to pay them tribute, and the gangsters sent Jack the same demands and threats. He is doubly brave because his girl thinks that he will be weakened by wealth and refuses to marry him until he proves otherwise. Underground passages, secret apartments, tenements and fine hotels—all are woven into a chain of thrills.

Wesley Barry, the freckle-faced child phenom, stars in "Dinty," which will be shown Monday. How Dinty becomes king of the newsboys' trust, works his way into the good graces of the assistant district attorney, aids in the recovery of his fiancée, who has been kidnapped by a gang of Malay halfbreeds and engineers a little romance of his own, is revealed in one of the best films of the screen.

Mary Miles Minter will appear Monday in "Don't Call Me Little Girl," playing the role of an incorrigible girl of eighteen, who rebels at being treated like a little girl by her mother, a widow who is trying to appear more youthful than she really is. Poor Jerry, dressed and treated like an infant, decides to strike and quits turns the family affairs topsy-turvy.
