

RANDOM SHOTS

One of the college wits remarks: "When woman was made out of a man's rib, someone pulled a bone."

A philanthropic Omaha ex-soldier is said to be strong for helping the working girls home—one at a time.

Trouble is, probably, that he never takes them anywhere else.

Do you remember when a man could take a girl out for an evening's entertainment, and come back with a dime out of the half dollar, even if his village had street cars? Two seats at the nickelodeon, 19 cents; two ice cream sodas, 20 cents; carfare, a dime. Total, 40 cents.

Ex-Kaiser Wilhelm is said to be considering taking a mate for his declining years. The poor fish couldn't even rule an empire.

THE CUB COMES BACK
As for a reason for the uncalled for and unkind aspersions of the editor about the cub reporter and his tennis, the cub can give only one explanation—jealousy.

When a man has reached the age where he can no longer take part in active sports and must resort to golf and rook, he naturally allows his bitterness to overcome him at times, and rails at the fate that allows others to enjoy themselves while he must play, or rather engage in—golf.

But the cub reporter will forgive him, he realizes that the lot of a golfer would sour the sunniest disposition.

When the editor sees his younger brother, and the cub reporter, both constitutionally able to take part in more violent sports than checkers, go blithely off to the tennis court, while he the editor, wearily plods the links, it is no wonder that the cup of sadness overflows.

Although he has not as yet developed high blood pressure, he is failing fast, in fact he has lost sixty pounds in the last three months.

He greatly envies his brother the picturesque hat he wears.

But he sighs and betakes himself to the links, where he spends a quiet afternoon.

The battle of the country—the clash of giants—all fade into insignificance when compared with the coming event.

The office devil and the ad-setter are to engage in a tennis battle.

Best two sets out of three—with a side bet of two bits.

For the championship of the back room, with the lino op barred.

The date, referee, and other arrangements for this epoch making match will be announced later.

MAUDE MULLER
(Brought Up to Date by the Douglas County Legionnaire)
Maude Muller, on a summer's day, mounted her flivver and sped away. She stepped on the gas with much disgust, and raised a necava lot of dust. Up the steep incline she started to go; about ten feet up she went into low. She stopped when she got to the top of the hill, and powdered her nose, and lit a pill. Just then the Judge, in a high powered boat, spoke to fair Maude, with a parching throat; and Maude, quite hep, took her hand from the throttle,

And handed the Judge a half-pint bottle. One drink of the stuff and the old Judge laughed. "A rougher swig I have never quaffed. When it comes to sunshine and making hay, your 'corn' and moonshine is better, I'd say." Maud thought, "I'd give ten bucks to ride in that swell sedan by the Judge's side." And the Judge said, "Gosh, were I young and dapper I could step right out with that sweet young flapper."

But the Judge, remarking, "It's rather hot," next helping himself to a paring shot, pulled out and away up the mountain trail at a speed for which he could be sent to jail. While our heroine Maud, in her old tin can, brought up the rear like an "also ran."

But the Judge jumped the road where it turned off sharp, and he floated away to play on a harp. And Maud said, "Speaking of words that cheer, the sweetest are these: 'I'm glad I'm here.'"

Leo Lloyd has now caught up with his lesson in poetry. He will, for the next lesson, read the above carefully and prayerfully, and then do his best to write a parody on the first canto of "Paradise Lost." If that doesn't cure him of writing poetry, his case is hopeless.

And now are mere children to crowd out spitz pups? A strong woman estimated to be 26 yrs. old, 5 ft. 9½ in. high, and 141 lb. (avoidupois) weight, appeared last Saturday in a neighboring town, on "Main Street," dressed in pantaloons, leading by a braid strap a male child who looked to be about the age of four years. No one ventured to seek an interview, so it is unknown whether the small boy was acquired in a cash transaction or otherwise.

The pantaloons? They were well down at the ankles, but the sweater, jacket, vest, or whatever it was, was well down at the throat.

The small boy's costume? Never thought to notice.

RAILROAD NOTES

Miss Frances Gadiant, third operator at Whitman has changed her name and now signs it Mrs. William Abbott, so the people say. While returning from a ten days' fishing trip in Wyoming last week they were married in Alliance Thursday at the court house by Judge Tash. The groom is of the Abbott Bros. garage firm at Whitman and is well and favorably known and their many friends in railroad and well as other circles wish them success in their new venture. Mrs. Abbott hasn't as yet announced her plans but it is understood that she will continue to work her position at Whitman for a while at least.

Mrs. C. W. Graham, wife of the agent at Hemingford, and daughter, Vera, returned from a several months' visit in California recently. Mrs. Graham had formerly worked as operator at Hemingford and it is understood that she will now give up her position there as the second operator's position there is open for bids to Alliance division operators and agents.

A special train of New York Shriners returning from the San Francisco convention was royally entertained by Alliance Shriners Sunday afternoon for a few hours. Superintendent Fred Gurley took the lead in this work. The train, which consisted of some very fine and up-to-date New York Central equipment, left Alliance at 5 p. m. Sunday afternoon. Conductor Campbell had charge of the train on the Alliance division to Ravenna.

Harry Link of the general superintendent's office left Saturday night for Los Angeles, where he will spend a two weeks' vacation.

Fred W. Johansen Accepts Filing for State Senator

Fred W. Johansen of Hay Springs, democratic candidate for the nomination for state senator, has issued the following statement:

In accepting the filing for State Senator, made for me on the democratic ticket by loyal friends, I wish to express my sincere thanks, and shall strive to do my best so as not to embarrass you by misplaced confidence if elected. The campaign too will mostly be in your hands for I am greatly opposed to Newberryism.

This will be a campaign of principles—progressives against reactionaries—regardless of mere party lines, consequently I am for needed reform—immediate and drastic cuts in public expenditures and taxes, including abolition of the dual system of the code and elective departments of state government; the cutting out of all waste and extravagance in public money, so that taxes will at once be reduced to the absolute necessities of a state government honestly and economically administered.

Prices for farm products must not be permitted to go below the cost of production, plus a reasonable profit.

Wages must not be permitted to go below the cost of living at American standards with a margin for old age.

It is no more than right that those who saved the world for democracy should receive a bonus, that in the main to be paid by the hundreds of millionaires created by profiteering during the war when our boys were risked their young lives for humanity's sake.

I shall help the people defeat the four obnoxious bills passed by the last reactionary legislature and referred to the people by referendum.

Very Sincerely Yours,
FRED W. JOHANSEN.
