

Day in Society

In accordance with previous announcements and plans, the Lions of Alliance, with their families and friends, journeyed to the new state park, in Pine Ridge, fifty-one miles north of Alliance, on Sunday.

Lion Ben Schaefer had surreptitiously taken the Alliance Boy Scout band to the park the night before, traveling in two Red trucks. The boys had camped out and met the delegation as it arrived Sunday morning with music. Good Fellowship Chairman Will O'Keefe, in charge of June entertainments, made the arrangements and saw that plenty of lemonade and ice cream were provided. Lion John Snyder hauling the materials over by truck Sunday morning.

There were in attendance at the picnic, including the Boy Scout band, about seventy persons, who enjoyed themselves in various ways. The baseball game, which was played prior to dinner time, resulted in a score of 47 to 1, in favor of the fans. The teams were unable to cope with Bill Harper's curves, bill being crossed with the bats, and doing some wonderful twirling. Lion John Gaurie proved an able catcher, missing none of them and using a gunny sack for a mitt.

Several hundred people were present in the park during the day and all were entertained by Bill Reese and his Boy Scouts, with excellent music. Many of the Lions journeyed to Chadron and back, before starting on the return trip. Most of the cavalcade arrived in Alliance at about 9 o'clock in the evening. The occasion was pronounced a huge success. Senator Good of Chadron and other Chadron celebrities visited the Lions during the day.

Two young people of Alliance are attending the summer school of Nebraska Wesleyan university in University Place. They are Miss Edna Wittsey and Miss La Rhea Lunn. The former is registered for work in economic human geography, primary and intermediate education, and Tennyson. The latter has courses in voice, history of education, American history, primary methods, and Tennyson. These young people are finding that the Wesleyan summer school has increased its attendance in the last two years to twice the number enrolled then. Many teachers and advanced school officials are registered that they may increase their professional standing.

The mid-summer picnic of Wesleyan university was held Saturday at one of the large city parks in Lincoln. A varied program of warm weather sports was arranged. The administrative dean of the summer session made an address and awarded the prizes. Dinner was served by the home economics department of Wesleyan.

AT THE RIALTO

"Partners of the Tide," the feature at the Rialto tonight, is a real sea story with a typical sea-captain, the two sisters who are spinsters, the girl aboard ship, and the shipwreck. The scene is laid in a typical, cozy little fishing village that makes an audience feel as if it, too, belonged in that village together with its inhabitants who have spent most of their life there.

The cast in this picture has been exceptionally well-chosen for the parts they play. For example consider J. P. Lockney as Captain Ezra Litcomb; Jack Perrin as second mate on the coast-wise schooner; Daisy Robinson as "the" girl; Sam Hammond as the "second-best" suitor for her hand; as well as other favorites who strike a true chord in their delineations of their various parts.

Wednesday's attraction at the Rialto is "The Referee," featuring Conway Tearle. It's a story of the prize ring, and is taken from the feature story in the Red Book by the same name.

On Thursday, the Rialto will show "Where Lights Are Low," a new Sessue Hayakawa hit. The Japanese star portrays the role of a young oriental prince whose love for the daughter of a gardener on his illustrious uncle's estate causes the complications upon which the play is built. His uncle insists that he wed the daughter of a wealthy mandarin but the princeling refuses and goes to America to acquire education and culture. Later the little daughter of the gardener is brought to America by slave dealers and the efforts of the young prince to win her back form the groundwork of a drama of the most gripping nature.

(By N. A. KEMMISH)

Last night's rain was fine for everyone. It packed the dusty places on our streets so that we can now again go ahead and do some grading. The water washed a large hole at Fifth and Nebraska around the storm sewer. We worked this forenoon filling it up. As a whole the water drained away fairly good. We had a few places, however, which gave us trouble on account of the people throwing their lawn clippings into the street and these washed down and filled up the intakes to the storm sewers.

We had considerable trouble on our power line during the night. The boys worked until about 9 o'clock trying to locate the trouble and went to bed and were called out again at 1:30 in the morning and have been working on it ever since. There is some place that they have been unable to locate that has a short and they are not able to hold the breakers in at the plant. They will probably locate it some time today.

To give you some idea of the amount of water which we have been pumping lately each day take a look at the standpipe and imagine that there were eight or nine such standpipes instead of one. These eight or nine standpipes filled will represent our daily consumption of water. The large pump at the power plant will fill one of these standpipes in one hour and forty minutes. During the peak hours from 5 p. m. until 9 p. m. we have used at the rate of about one standpipe full each hour. We have been pumping nearly 200 gallons of water per day for every person in the city.

Scottsbluff Wins 1923 Convention of Nebraska Elks

Scottsbluff won the Elks convention for 1923 over Lincoln and Omaha at Columbus where the 1922 convention just closed, says the Scottsbluff News. "We didn't give them a chance," said "Doc" Crawford Saturday morning. "We just got to our feet and tied it up before those other fellows got started."

Frank Greene of Lincoln argued that it would be better and cheaper to have the convention in Lincoln and Doc Crawford said: "Why, it will cost me just as much to come and see you as it will for you to come and see me."

"This convention should bring 700 delegates to this town next year," said Doc Crawford. "Besides it should bring other visitors." "But," Doc added, "it all depends on us."
