In truth if he made the remarks with which he is credited he should make a public apology to the II. 27. young lady. We have no reason to doubt the evangelist's sincerity of purpose, in fact do not, but there is a certain tinge of sensationalism in his sermons or addresses which he should divorce from them. Sensational sermons may be appreciated by a small part of a large audience, but on the whole they are productive of very little good. That such sermons do not have a lasting effect s proved in the case of Sam Jones, Sam Small and others, who no longer draw the audiences they did formerly. We inderstand several inquisitive individpals have announced their intention of looking up Mr. Nathan's antecedents, but this will probably not result to the evangelist's disadvantage. of the soap root and cactus. The government, owning one-half of this land, as well as the speculators who own the balance and bought it for a song and taxes, should make liberal donations to a company that would complete such an enterprise, as the value of their lands would be greatly increased. While other states are taking worthless desert and mountainous lands, and by turning upon it plenty of water taken from artificial channels or canals fed from nature's own sources, they have made the land worth from $50 to $500 per acre. Why can we not do the same? Two hundred and fifty thousand dollars economically spent in building an irrigating canal through Lincoln, Dawson and Buffalo counties would add millions to its wealth each year. With God's sunshine to warm mother earth and the energy of the people living here this section of the Platte valley would Prof. Carl Weiland, late of Sidney, and be transformed into one of the richest well known to many North Platte people, agricultural and manufacturing districts
