Lancaster Woman's Club.

My DEAR EDITOR:—

In response to an invitation to tell something of the organization of the Lancaster Woman's club, I will state that we are at present, nameless—or, to use the language of one of our rude contemporaries, we have "slipped, like a ship from its stays, a nameless derelict." In spite of an invitation to our dear critics, the men, we fail to hear anything better suggested, than the following from a devoted habitue of the Hamilton club, a financier, a man of letters, who, having outlived his days of grace with the fair sex, would atone not alone to one lone woman, but to the dear creatures all. United in the Woman's club, he would share his club's name, and graciously call it the Mrs. Hamilton club; but in lieu of a name, over which we have had quite a breezy time, we will be compelled to call it the Lancaster Woman's club until we get a better.

The three names receiving the highest number of votes in the last ballot being Korvonia (a Greek word meaning club or a community of interests), Portia, and Julianna Penn. The necessary two-thirds vote was wanting; so the subject was postponed for a month, and at that time, the name would come by inspiration. The number of members now numbers 166 members. Our president is Miss Alice Nevin, daughter of the late Prof. Nevin, president of Franklin and Marshall college. To Miss Nevin's untiring energy and persistence we owe our existence. She has good common sense, intellectual ability, as well as high social position, which inspire confidence with regard to the success of the club.

There has been quite an animated discussion among the women of the club as to the proper signature in the registering of names. It is of course customary in writing to a friend or equal to sign your christian name, and there is not a woman who has signed that is ignorant of that fact. A woman's club, however, is made of a hundred or more names, many of whom are merely acquaintances, by whom your christian name would be scarce recognized. In the case of several of the same name the distinction would easily be found in the name of the husband—especially where three or four of the same name, or, as is frequently the case, where mother and daughter bear the same name.

At present we have organized a number of departments each presided over by a chairman and assistant chairman, whose duties are to promote the success of their own department. We have a class in Current Events, chairman Mrs. Robinson, meeting every alternate Wednesday morning. A department of Music under the chairmanship of Mrs. McCarter, assisted by Mrs. Esheiman, we think will prove a fine department with good work. A five or ten minute essay will be read on a subject pertaining to music, by some one appointed by the chairman at the previous meeting—the unjoined essay being read by the writer of this letter at one of the meetings.

There is no language, except that of Love, that is more universal than the beautiful language of Music. It does not require a fine education to enjoy its charms, or to be either rich or poor, to be susceptible to its influence. The lullaby was doubtless the first connected music, as it was the natural outcome of mother-love many, many years ago. The Hebrew mother Mary sang a lullaby, no doubt, to our Lord, as he lay encircled in her arms. Each nationality has its own lullaby—of course in its own language—but the dear babies, superior to us children of a larger growth, understand them all lines, notably educational and political. The Omaha Woman's Club is educational with a practical side, and not in the least political. Within its ample wings women of all shades of religious and political belief are gathered and the utmost good feeling prevails. Its democracy is so broad that the most aristocratic leader of society holds a place equal to, but no higher than that of the woman who works for her living. Ability and tact are the passports to popularity, not dollars and cents, and in this genial atmosphere talent hitherto buried has blossomed like the rose.

Once or twice factionalism has shown its hateful form, but it was quickly suppressed, and at the present time there is no sign of it. The Club has a membership of 500, with an annual fee of $3.00 per member. It is composed of twelve departments which meet regularly once in two weeks for study, and each is required to furnish at least one programme for the general club meetings which are held every alternate Monday afternoon from three o'clock until five.

Political economy and social science, applied economics, philosophy, art, music, German literature, English literature, current topics, domestic economy, parliamentary law and United States history are the different lines of study done in the separate departments. Each department has an able leader and the study done under her direction is the most profitable work accomplished by the club. The department of parliamentary law gave one of the most unique and truly humorous programmes given during the year. It was in the form of a debate on dress reform, and the question was discussed, amended, substitutes offered and finally considered by the committee of the whole. An appeal was taken from the decision of the chair—the previous question moved and all conducted in the most approved parliamentary fashion.

The musical department has studied the development of music from the first generation chant down to Mozart and Mendelssohn and its work has been exceedingly profitable and entertaining. In connection with, and as an aid to the work of the art department in studying the history of painting, a series of six lectures was undertaken, illustrated by stereopticon views of the works of the old masters from Cimabue down to Murillo. A small fee was charged and so popular was the course that the department was enabled to purchase some beautiful photographs of famous pictures which now hang on the walls of the club room. The German literature department was the first to present a gift to the club in the form of a portrait of Goethe, whose works formed their basis of study during the present year.

The department of German history whose vicissitudes have been many and varied, gave the programme on April 27th and, although the study is both complex and difficult, a most entertaining programme was given. The current topic department is very large and enthusiastic and discusses everything from Trilby to the Chinese-Japanese treaty.

Applied economics may be said to be the practical side of the department of political economy which has ably considered such subjects as money, bimetalism, compulsory education and municipal reform.

A Shakespearean travesty was a feature of the English literature programme, in which Portia, Juliet, Ophelia and Lady Macbeth aired their grievances. Besides possessing their own furnishings—curtains, tables, chairs, etc.—the club possesses a gavel made from the mahogany of Ford's theatre where Lincoln was assassinated, presented by Mrs. S. R. Towne, and quantities of tea cups, for the club indulges in an occasional tea-drinking which adds to its sociability.

At its last meeting, Wednesday afternoon, May 1st, the musical department presented to the club a set of handsomely framed portraits of the six greatest musicians. A letter from the Omaha Club would not be complete without a word of the capable and efficient president, Mrs. Frances M. Ford, to whom, more than to any one person, the club owes its existence. Exceedingly versatile in her accomplishments, full of energy and executive ability, she is well qualified to hold the difficult and trying position to which she was elected one year ago.

The club is a member of the General Federation of Women's Clubs and is one of the members of the Nebraska Federation of Clubs, whose vice president, Mrs. R. B. Peattie, is one of the most popular and honored members of the Omaha Woman's Club. ELIZABETH H. HADSEY, State Chairman, P. W. C. A Letter from North Carolina.

Dillsboro has, perhaps 300 inhabitants—and is such a sleepy town. This is the most primitive country, the people as a whole being ignorant, indolent, immoral, contented, filthy, and poor. You have read in the "Poor Mountain Whites" how you find them in their native state. Almost without exception they live on tobacco, the wool of their sheep, and many chew as well. A mother often puts the sunburn into the baby's mouth to get it.

There is no church building but the Baptists have part of the lumber on the ground on a month, but Sunday school every Sunday. There is a two-story frame school-house in which school is held this during the year; but, as we are obliged to hire the teachers, it is of but little value.

The one thing that is stopping is made of tin and covered inside with paper. Most houses have log cabins, without any queer experiences. We have seen many queer experiences. The Tuckasegee in a log canoe twenty feet long. Gathering our skirts about us, on account of the water in the boat, we peached ourselves on either side to balance it, hardly daring to breathe for fear we might tip over.

One morning I went to a funeral uninvited. A woman had died up the mountain. Her coffin was strapped to a rail and brought down on the shoulders of two men. A wagon cannot reach many of these mountain homes. We attended a wedding, too. Sixty or forty miles in a hack. It was a church wedding at "high noon." The bride looked very sweet in her white dress, but her conversation told the story of birth and no education. We forded a stream twice so that the water came into the box, and broke down twice, but tied up with stricks and rope.

We have just returned from our mountain trip. Six of us took a rough, hard trip in a three-seated rig. We started Monday at 6 a. m. and returned Saturday evening at 8 o'clock. We were fifty miles from Dillsboro, and went over the roughest roads in the United States—steep, rocky, slippery, and washed out. We saw scenery more than ever before, except in Yosemite. The gentlemen caught brook-trout for our dinners, and we took provisions and cooking utensils, we camped in true log-cabin style. We stayed at night in the natives in their windowless room log-cabins, and for supper had breakfast ate hoe-cake and hushpuppy, and called it good. On a day in which we slept, was made victory wifes, instead of rope.

troubled me much. Twice we had to get up early to allow the hen to lay her egg in our bed. The hens, too, picked the meal out of the bowl, saving washing. It was funny. It was weird. I had to keep in mind that it did not kill these people to live in this way all the time, surely it would not be in one week. Let me give you a sample of the names down here: "Malessie Delphia Eemelia Consigna Brown." The following belong to one family: There are others, but "George" could not remember them: First—George Wellington Washington Calvin Spriggs Theodore Columbus Nathaniel Napoleon Woods; second—Isabella Iretta Aretta Ringer Borr Mary Louisa Frances Jane Woods; Third—William Henry Taylor Julius Thaddeus Nebo Scott Santee Marion Woods. They rattle them off so fast you cannot understand them.

I shall give you a sample of the dialect, and close: "Honey! Chilleen! Howdy! Waal haow d'ye come on? I'm jes taboul. How's you'uns? I'm mighty happy in this er kinty. Say howdy to your maw for me. We're a right smart o' preachin here o' Sundays. Some o' it I know'd wan't right, but I lowed as 'twas best to keep taboul quik like. I reckon as how that's plenty o' meat hyar coz thar war a right smart lot o' mast last year. Heap o' pigs runnin' thro' th' woods with cow-bells on. I w'ld mizzabul when I kum down yar, but I'm gittin' miter staout."

"The would-be 'Tar-heel." PHILIDE BURGAMAREE, Dillsboro, N. C., April 24, '95.
