Attorney-General Churchill began a suit in the district court at Kearney last week against the defunct Buffalo county national bank, which failed on Oct. 11, 1894. At the time there were $5000 of state money on deposit there, and this suit is against the bondsmen. It is the first one brought under the depository act. The bond is thought to be good, and a disposition on the part of the bondsmen to settle has been evinced.

The Oxnard Beet Sugar company has issued a circular to the farmers from whom the company bought beets calling attention to the late decision of the supreme court regarding sugar bounty. The company bought the beets on a contract providing for such a contingency, paying $4 per ton at the time of delivery, the other $1 to be paid when the bounty was paid by the state. Now only $4 will be paid. The company agrees however to keep the state agents at the factories till the close of the season to protect the interests of the farmers. Incidentally the circular advises beet raisers to get together and urge the incoming legislature to make an appropriation covering the amount of bounty earned during the past two years.

It was intended as a specific for asthma, and now hundreds of persons have become slaves to the snuff.
