Washington, Oct. 14.—The Union Pacific, Burlington and Northwestern railways, will, it is expected, win their case against the state of Nebraska, the opinion in which will be handed down on Monday by the supreme court. Justice Brewer, two years ago, decided an injunction against the state enforcing of the provisions of which was called into question by those railroads, and it in accordance with this injunction. The law of 1893 established a schedule of maximum freight charges which was considered by the railroads doing business in the state as illegal, being too low to allow hanling on a living basis. It was asserted also that the law was unconstitutional. The case was pending more than four years in the state courts, the decision each time being in favor of the railroad companies. Upon the granting of the injunction by Justice Brewer, the state carried its case to the supreme court of the United States, but at no time has there been any hope for a final decision favorable
