Gus Chamberlain Injured.

While attempting to make a pilot bar coupling Friday night Gus Chamberlain received a very painful flesh wound in his left leg just above the ankle. Gus was breaking on the first section of train No. 19. The engine which was pulling the train wasn't steaming very well and it was necessary to couple on another engine. While Gus was attempting to make the coupling the pilot bar slipped and his leg was pinched between the bar and pilot in such a manner that quite a large piece of flesh was cut out. He was also pretty severely bruised. He was brought home and his wounds were dressed. He is making very fair progress.

Barn Burned.

Sunday afternoon the large barn on the rear of the Cunningham property in the First ward was almost totally destroyed by fire. The fire was not discovered until it had gained considerable headway and by the time the alarm was turned in and the hose companies and hook and ladder company reach the barn the whole interior was ablaze. The department worked hard and succeeded in getting the fire under control but not until the building was so badly burned and charred that it is practically worthless. Fortunately there were no horses in the barn at the time it caught fire but there was about a hundred sacks of feed stored in it and some household goods which were soaked with water and are very much damaged. The barn was insured but there will be about $100 loss on the contents. It is not known definitely how the fire started but as there is a window over one of the mows and the fire evidently started there it is thought that some passerby must have dropped a match in the window.

The bright and witty satire in Hoyt's "A Milk White Flag" is directed toward the National Guard. But it is done in such a manner that not the least offense can be taken or was any ever intended. The comedy which is one of Hoyt's happiest efforts has for the past few seasons crowded the theatres everywhere. Its popularity seems to increase instead of diminish. But this is no doubt due to the management keeping the company presenting it strictly up to the standard of original cast. The author has also seen fit to revise it to meet changed conditions of the day and to introduce new musical numbers and a change of specialties. The company is a large one numbering nearly fifty people. Its superb scenic embellishments and showy costuming presents a charming view to the eye while the musical numbers delight the ear with melody. This is by far the most pretentious production sent out by the ambitious author, who judges so accurately what the public desire in the amusement line.
