Arthur Hoagland has leased the store building formerly occupied by the Heckler meat market and after it is thoroughly renovated and some improvements are made he expects to move his stock of confectionery. This summer he will open an ice cream parlor in connection with his store.

The case of Henry Nusbaum vs Harvy Rhoades occupied the attention of the county court Wednesday morning. The plaintiff was suing for the possession of property occupied by the defendant which the former had purchased. A verdict was rendered in his favor but the defendant immediately filed an appeal bond and the case will be taken to the district court.

The arguments on the motion to dissolve the injunction in the Heckler case were all heard by Judge Grimes Tuesday afternoon but a decision will not be rendered for several days as it cannot be confirmed until the next term of district court; but, as there is some expense attached to keeping the fixtures in their present location, the judge ordered the sheriff to sell them and turn the proceeds into court to be awarded, later, to the proper person.

M. C. Harrington returned Tuesday night from Lincoln. He was accorded the honor which he coveted—election as a delegate to the democratic national convention at Kansas city—and he proposes to see that the big Sixth covers itself with glory. He was also made chairman of the committee to arrange for proper headquarters for the Nebraska delegation at Kansas City. This delegation thinks that it will be the cynosure of the convention because of the fact that W. J. Bryan is still a resident of this state and they propose to make headquarters which will not exactly be examples of the much-vaunted "Jeffersonian simplicity."

Wanted—A girl to do general housework. F. J. GRAU.

Mrs. Mary Calkins died March 9, 1900, at the home of her son at Ruskin, Ga. The Coming Nation, published at Ruskin, in speaking of her death says "Mrs. Calkins had been an earnest worker in the ranks of the W. C. T. U., and had graduated in her mature years in the Chautauqua course of study. She was a fluent writer and has left some poetry which is highly prized by her two surviving children, Mrs. L. C. Brown and J. K. Calkins. She was ready and anxious to go, and her passage was as peaceful as though she was falling asleep." Mrs. Calkins was well known here where she spent a number of years, having left here about two years ago to make her home with her daughter Mrs. L. C. Brown. Her death causes widespread regret here.

Surprise Parties.

An epidemic of surprise parties seems to have struck North Platte. Tuesday Mrs. John Singleton passed another milestone in her life's journey and that evening a number of her relatives and about twenty of her neighbors tendered her a surprise party. They gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Clabaugh and about eight o'clock they stormed the Singleton home much to the astonishment of Mrs. Singleton and from then until midnight there was a constant flow of fun. The solution of a floral love tale which had been prepared by Mrs. Clabaugh furnished considerable merriment some of the gentle-finding that their floral knowledge was very limited. Mrs. J. S. Hoagland in a very witty speech on behalf of the guests presented Mrs. Singleton with some very handsome punch glasses to help her remember the occasion.

Wednesday was Mrs. J. I. Smith's birthday and in the afternoon about thirty ladies gathered at Mrs. F. T. Redmond's home and then proceeded to Mrs. Smith's and informed her that they had come to help her properly celebrate such an important event. The afternoon proved to be full of pleasure for everyone concerned. The ladies presented Mrs. Smith with a dozen silver tea spoons and a cream ladle.

Shoemaking.

The careful and painstaking maker of good footwear insists that the lasts over which each shoe is modeled, remain in it long enough to thoroughly set the shoe to its shape; to "season" it, one might say.

By so doing, the original shape is retained much longer in the wearing.

Our orders for each season's styles are given early enough to allow the necessary time for this seasoning. Careful fitting added to proper construction insures shoe satisfaction.

A Daylight Theft.

What seems to have been quite a daring theft occurred at the Besack residence Monday afternoon. The only occupants of the house at the time it must have taken place were Mrs. Besack and her sister, who has been ill. They were both lying down and heard no one enter the house. The first inkling of a theft occurred when Mrs. Besack went to a bureau drawer where she keeps her money to get some and found that the pocketbooks had been rifled of their contents. She then began to look around and discovered that the front door was ajar and that a pocketbook which had been in the drawer with the others was lying on the floor with its contents gone. The thief probably got eighteen dollars as that is the amount Mrs. Besack thinks was in the pocketbooks. She is unable to give any description of the money. So far the officers have been unable to unearth any clue.
