A very interesting garnishee case, in which McCullough & Carter are plaintiffs and a Denver commission firm is defendant, has been on in the county court this week. The plaintiffs sold the defendants a large amount of hay at a contract price, but when time for settlement came the Denver firm refused to pay the price contracted, leaving a balance of about $300 in favor of McCullough & Carter. The latter then brought garnishment proceedings against the Union Pacific railroad company with a view of attaching cars of hay and grain belonging to the Denver firm which might come into the hands of the company at this point. It is this latter phase of the case that has been occupying the time in the county court.
