The committee on permanent organization and order of business reported, which report was accepted.

The resolution committee reported as follows:

Be it resolved: By the Republicans of Lincoln county in county convention assembled:

That we endorse the wise administration of Wm. McKinley as president of the United States, and that we congratulate the people upon their prosperous and happy condition as a result of such administration.

That we congratulate the people of the state of Nebraska upon the return of the state to the republican column, and we heartily endorse the present republican state officials in their wise and economic administration of the state offices in contrast with the extravagant course of the preceding fusion party.

That we heartily endorse the administration of county affairs by the present republican county officials, and that we heartily endorse the course pursued in the last legislature by our representative Honorable John E. Evans and commend him for the noble stand he made in the interests of the people of this district.

That we pledge the nominees of this convention, it elected, to an honest and economic administration of county affairs.

The following supplementary resolution was unanimously passed:

Resolved, That we, the republicans of Lincoln county in convention assembled, heartily endorse the course of our representative, the Hon. John E. Evans, in so faithfully carrying out the wishes of his constituents during the last session of the legislature, and for his unwavering devotion to principle and the carrying out of the expressed wishes of his constituents against all the pressure brought to bear in that memorable struggle.

Nominations for candidates for county offices were then declared in order and upon motion of Robbins of Wallace, the rules were suspended and C. F. Scharmann renominated by acclamation.

BOYS' SCHOOL SUITS.

From the way the mothers come here for their Boys' Clothes means that both price and quality must be all right. The clothing of boys is as a rule the hardest part of a retailers business. He's got to suit both boy and mother and patch up the difference between them, as they seldom agree on clothes. One lively ambitious boy will convince you of the wisdom of buying good sturdy wear resisting clothing, than a whole column of talk.

In Memoriam.

[Lines written in memory of Linda Layton who died July 13, 1901.]

Down the aisle they now are passing,
passing on with solemn tread,
While the mourning cortege follows,
softly weeping for the dead.

Tenderly they bear their burden, laden with its blossoms rare,
Which dear friends in kind remembrance,
brought in love and scattered there.

Brought because they knew and loved her,
she who lies in dreamless rest,
Sleeping 'neath their fragrant offerings,
with their token on her breast.

Draw aside their bloom a moment, look upon our loved ones face, Tell me then were death so cruel, which bath brought that smile of peace;

Look upon her now and tell me, would you call her back again?
Who through long months saw her tossing
on a bed of senseless pain.

Ask that mother true and faithful,
bending there above her dead,
She who weary months unceasing watched beside her loved one's bed.

Her sad face will tell the story which her lips may not reveal
Of that deep absorbing sorrow mothers'
hearts alone can feel.

She for whom 'twas doubly hard that she should be called away, Ask her if she would recall her, she I know would answer nay.

Not into this world of sorrow, not into
that bed of pain,
Though my heart may break without her would I call her back again;
And the tender, loving sisters and the brother kind and true,

Not the least of this great sorrow was the share that came to you.
'Twas your child-hoods dear companion
and your friend in later years,
But 'tis God that hath bereft you He will wipe away your tears.

And the question would you wake her would be answered still I know
By the ones who loved her best in the lines which read below.

No! we would not wake thee Linda though our poor hearts throb with pain

That we may not meet thee, see thee,
sometime on this earth again.
Though our future hours of gladness
thou with us may share

Though earth's brightest spots be shadowed by the thought she is not there.

It is one of our number a youth in early bloom
Has been called away by death and is laid in the tomb.

Little did we think that she would be called away so soon,
But ah, the morning sun went down at noon.

When she was with us she was blooming and gay
But O, she was called for and taken away

When you go to yonder graveyard just look you there with care
And remember it won't be long till we all shall lie there.

We will not forget thee, dear Linda, we who stay to work a little longer
here,

Thy name, thy faith, thy love shall lie on memory's tablets bright and clear,
And when o'er wearied by the toil of life,
our heavy limbs sh all be

We'll come one by one lie down upon dear Mother Earth with thee.
