Alex. Stewart succeeds W. R. McKeen as master mechanic of the Wyoming division, entering upon his duties Sunday. This promotion bears out the prediction made in these columns over two years ago to the effect that as Mr. Stewart had begun the ascent of the ladder he would not stop short of the top round. Since that time he has had two promotions, and each have been well deserved. Mr. Stewart is a North Platte boy, and his ascendancy in railroad circles is watched by all his old friends in town, all of whom we are sure will unite with us in extending him congratulations.

Still growing! The membership received an increase of four yesterday. "I got him," said a boy that was too young to join the association, a lover of books, "I kept at him until he said yes." It was his father, a U. P. engineer, that he referred to. No wonder the association grows.

Respond generously to the committee collecting money for the Caldwell-Wolfe meetings. Your son may be helped.
