DELAWARE republicans, in state convention, have declared in favor of Roosevelt in 1904. One by one the states are falling into line.

THE Omaha Bee refers to the head of the legal department of the Union Pacific as Bombastes Furiosa Baldwin. Judging from Baldwin's actions while in this city the early part of the week, the name is particularly applicable.

THE republican congressional committee for the Second district will meet tomorrow, and the first active round between the Mercerites and anti-Mercerites will occur. Viewed from this distance the encounter may prove very interesting.

THE nearest approach to a riot North Platte has witnessed during the strike was last Monday evening when Editor Kelly and Attorney Baldwin met and exchanged personalities. It is needless to say that Baldwin was vanquished and got out of town on the first train.

EDITOR ROSEWATER says that under certain conditions he might support Hitchcock, the fusion candidate for congress. Such a course would be taken not because Rosewater loves Hitchcock but by reason of his intense hatred for David Mercer.

THE Kansas City Star says that a Colorado trapper killed two grizzly bears the other day with a knife thrust taught him by President Roosevelt. Then the man fainted. Evidently he had learned only half the lesson. The President would have skinned the bears and packed the skins and hindquarters into camp.

A COMBINATION of farmers under the name of the Farmers' National Co-Operative Exchange Company, has been organized in South Dakota with with a capital of fifty million dollars. The object of the company is to buy and deal in grain and other farm products, and to build elevators, storage plants and stockyards. The success of this farmers' "trust" will be watched with considerable interest.

THE rumor that the strike of the anthracite coal miners would be settled by September 1st is not likely to prove true. The president of one of the largest companies says no settlement can be effected through the mediation of outside parties and intimates that the strikers must accept the mine owners' terms or the mines will remain closed, regardless of what the miners or the public may suffer. There should be a law enacted that would reach and control such arbitrary positions as the coal barons are now taking.

THE value of the tin plate manufactured in the United States in 1900 was forty-one million dollars, the industry giving employment to 14,000 men who received in that year ten million dollars in wages. Those figures represent the growth of the tin plate industry in ten years, for in 1890 little or no tin plate was produced in this country. The success of this industry was largely due to the McKinley tariff, which fostered it when it was in its infancy. If the same fostering care is given the beet sugar industry, a similar stride will be made, and the farmers of the west who raise the beets will reap the big share of the prosperity which the industry will bring.
