Finnigan's Ball.

Gallagher and Barrett, the Irish noblemen in "Finnigan's Ball" are making their eighth annual tour of the country and will be here at the opera house on Tuesday evening, Sept. 9th. Not many farce comedies live to reach this age, but it has always been the policy of the management to secure the best people that were to be found in the farce comedy field and supply them every year with new and bright material to work with. Farce comedy is of that loose dramatic construction which permits, and even invites, these annual changes or revision; and when carefully and judiciously done, as has been the case with "The Ball," the entertainment is really a new one each year. More elaborate changes and improvements have been made in the piece this season than at any time in the last four years, and the result is, that even those who have seen the piece many times before will find it this year a new entertainment to them.

In every sense of the word "Finnigan's Ball" is this season a new show. Its old friends can see it again confident of finding even more entertainment than ever before and a host of new friends will be glad to see the greatest farce comedy success of the last decade.
