The fact that Rock Springs coal sells in Omaha for one dollar a ton less than in North Platte, though the haul is 291 miles greater, is a matter that does not go down well with the average North Platte citizen. That the coal is sold cheaper there than here is of course due to the freight rates.

During his recent trip west, E. F. Seeberger made contracts for about four hundred tons of alfalfa hay. The greater part of this hay will be baled near Hershey and shipped from that station.
