Dear Madam:

Spices since the early dawn of history have been considered drugs, but with the advanced (?) methods of competition this line gradually passed from the shelves of the pharmacist into other hands, unfortunately, in many instances, at the expense of quality. The new Pure Food Law again places competition on an even basis and we take this means of advising you that we are dealers in Spices of the highest quality, in fact, "As good as nature grows."

The table published by the state board of equalization gives the assessed value of lands in Lincoln county for 1908 at $1,737,422, compared with a value of $852,642 in 1907, an increase of $884,780. In 1907 the average assessed value of Lincoln county land was seventy cents per acre, this year it is $1.40—just double.

The returns from the state board of equalization on the value of Lincoln county real and personal property were received yesterday. The state board made no changes from the values returned by the county assessor and his deputies, which can be taken as evidence that their valuation was considered fair and equitable by the state board. Presentation Address.

The following is part of an address made by F. J. Doran, chairman of the protective board of Division 88 and member of the general board of the B. of L. E., Tuesday evening of last week when veterans' medals were presented to Messrs. Vroman, Rollins, Gibbs, Farrington, Crusen and Sullivan, retired engineers:

Brothers and Sisters of the G. I. A. and B. of L. E.:

We meet here this evening to get acquainted and renew old acquaintances, and spend a few hours in pleasure and enjoyment. There are many reasons why the ties that bind us in these two organizations should be secure and strong, but were I to undertake to fully illustrate the many benefits and advantages our Brotherhood to the general public and to the railroads, as well as to the individual members themselves, I could not do it justice.

The history of our organization dates back forty-five years to 1863 when engineers were few and railroads far between. In the city of Detroit a little band of eight engineers, who had the welfare of each other at heart, organized themselves into a society and called it the Brotherhood of the Foot Board. The object was to promote the efficiency of the locomotive engineers and better their working conditions. They adopted for their motto "Truth, Justice, Sobriety and Morality."

In laying the foundation of this, one of the first and greatest labor organizations on the face of the earth, they proved to the world that it is the duty of every man, regardless of his position in life, to contribute his portion toward the betterment of human society. If it were not for what we see, what we hear or what we read, we would be a very ignorant class of people. It is from the experience of others, and with their assistance, that we are able to add to our store of knowledge. The B. of L. E. affords us ample opportunity to improve our condition.

The Brotherhood of the Foot Board held its first convention in the city of Indianapolis in 1864. It was there that the name was changed to the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

In 1867 they adopted an insurance association in connection with the Brotherhood, for the protection of a little home. It is practically a banking institution, but somewhat different from the banking institutions throughout the country, in that, it has never been known to fail. In the thirty-nine years that it has been in force, it has paid out to disabled members, and members' families, over nineteen millions of dollars, besides making large donations to charity.

We have now over 66,000 members in our Brotherhood, and our subdivisions are scattered from the Atlantic to the Pacific ocean, and from the Gulf of Mexico to the northern boundaries of Canada. Our organization is growing stronger, not only in numbers but in favor and influence, in whatever part of the country a division exists.

We have members in every civilized country on the face of the earth. We have members who hold responsible positions in the different branches of the railway service. We have members who hold some of the most important public offices in the gift of the American people, and it is gratifying to know that they have so conducted themselves that they not only do themselves credit, but bring honor to the organization to which they belong.

Division 88 was the first division of the B. of L. E. organized on the Union Pacific Railroad. It was organized in 1867 with nine charter members. It has grown until we have had 201 members enrolled. At this time we have 122 members. What has become of the other 79? Some have left our city, and gone to other railroads. Some have been retired from railroad service, and we have stood around the graves of some and paid the last tribute to a departed brother. There are but two of those charter members living, Brother Farrington and Brother Rollins, two of our honored guests this evening. For forty-one years, these members have stood by Div. 88 and proved themselves Brotherhood engineers in every sense of the word.

When I came into the hall this evening, and looked at those two old pioneers of Division 88, my thoughts wandered back to the early settlement of this western country, and in my imagination, I could see those two brothers, forty-three years ago, crossing the Missouri River into Nebraska and casting their lot with this great Union Pacific Railroad. At that time, there were but fifteen miles of track. Brother Farrington and Brother Rollins were employed in 1865 and they are the second and fourth engineers who were employed by the Union Pacific Railroad. They have not only proved themselves true Brotherhood men, but have been loyal to the Company and given long and faithful service. Brother Farrington was retired in 1905, after forty years service, and Brother Rollins in 1907, after forty two years service.

Brothers J. J. Sullivan and W. J. Crusen, two more members of Division 88, who have spent the best part of their lives in the service of this company, and proved themselves true Brotherhood men have also been retired.

Brother E. B. Gibbs, one of the oldest members of Division 88, who ran an engine out of North Platte in the early days of the Union Pacific, and for many years held official positions on different parts of the system, was retired some time ago. Brother Gibbs has always had a warm spot in his heart for the Brotherhood and Division 88.

Brother Vroman, another retired member of this division, and after whom Division 88 was called, has been in the Brotherhood for forty-three years, and an active member of Division 88 for thirty-nine years. It was
