OFFICER SHOT DOWN

PROMINENT CITIZEN OF WEEPING WATER INSTANTLY KILLED.

POSSE PURSUE MURDERERS

Heroic Measures Likely to Be Taken on the Malefactor if Overhanded by Hounds.

Weeping Water—Suspecting that Nightwatchman C. A. Ralston was going to arrest them one of the two men thought to be the robbers of the Manley bank, five miles from here, shot and instantly killed the officer about 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

Immediately the community was aroused and every man who could secure a weapon and a horse started in pursuit of the murderers; the sheriff made a fast drive from Plattsmouth in an automobile, bringing bloodhounds with him; officers in Lincoln were notified to bring hounds and come here as well as go to stations northwest of here in which direction the murderers went after shooting Ralston.

The Platte river bridges are also being guarded and the man hunt has been taken up with such vigor and determination that it seems almost impossible that the murderers can escape.

Class county is a network of telephones. The lines have all been busy, Eagle, Murdock, Alvo, South Bend, Ashland, Louisville and others have been notified.

Feeling is so intense that only the cool heads of the prominent business men in the searching party will prevent a lynching should the men be apprehended.

The murdered nightwatchman is a member of prominent families and has lived in Weeping Water almost since boyhood. He was a terror to evil doers and a very brave man. The men who committed the deed stopped all night at the Riverside hotel. They registered as Charles Selders and Arthur Munster and took breakfast there, eating dinner just before the murder. They came here looking like bums, but left wearing good clothes of a dark color and soft black hats.

They are about five feet ten or eleven inches in height and one was slightly stooped, one weighing about 160 pounds, while the other was thinner and weighed about 140 pounds.

From the hotel they went up the track to the coal chutes and behind the cars Ralston met them and they fired one shot, killing him instantly. He fell on his face in the cinders.

The section foreman heard the shots and saw the men running away. He went to investigate and found the night watchman dying. Previous to going up the tracks Ralston was talking with a detective sent here to look up the Manley bank robbery and the detective told him to keep an eye on these men. In less than fifteen minutes Ralston was killed. Bloodhounds are also on the road here from Lincoln.

Charley Ralston is one of the best known men in central Cass county and connected with prominent families of Weeping Water. He had been night watchman at two different times, covering a period altogether of about ten years. He is a brother of Alfred Ralston, former butcher and cattle buyer.

Horsethief Shot by Sheriff.

Rapid City, S. D.—Two horse thieves, named Harvey and Johnson, escaped from the jail at Oacoma in Lyman county Wednesday night and later while being re-arrested by the sheriff one of the malefactors was shot dead. It seems that Harvey and Johnson had stolen a team of horses, wagon and harness at Dallas and were overtaken by the officers and placed in the jail at Oacoma. With the aid of a stove lifter and some lumps of coal they pried and pounded a hole in the roof of the jail and escaped.

MATTERS OF INTEREST TO ALL CITIZENS.

MORE STATE FAIR BUILDINGS

Secretary Mellor Starts Campaign for Stock Pavilion and Grand Stand on the Fair Grounds.

Will Ask For $100,000.

Secretary W. R. Mellor of the state board of agriculture is planning to ask the next legislature for $100,000 for a large stock pavilion on the state fair grounds. The board of agriculture is now gathering information relative to the cost and size of a building suitable for that purpose. An appropriation of $100,000 will be needed if a building similar to those used in other western states is erected. Secretary Mellor also desires to start a new steel grand stand for the track, but is not positive that the legislature will be asked to appropriate money for the stand. A live stock pavilion is greatly needed, the little structure now used for that purpose being too small and is now used only for showing horses. The cattle were shown in a tent at the last fair.

Missouri spent $70,000 for a stock pavilion and Minnesota paid $110,000 for one without seats. A steel grandstand of reinforced concrete construction, made in accordance with the latest plans, with a seating capacity of 12,000, would cost $150,000.

The Iowa state board wants to build a larger stock pavilion and a steel grandstand. Secretary J. C. Simpson, accompanied by President Cameron of the Iowa board, took an architect with them on a recent trip to examine structures at the Michigan fair grounds, and the Canadian national exposition at Toronto and examined a steel grandstand at Belmont, N. Y., Secretary Simpson, writing to Secretary Mellor, said:

"I think the Nebraska state fair has a great future. I have heard much complimentary mention made of your fair from exhibitors and visitors alike. With the growing attendance which you have at your fair, it would be my opinion that you would want a stand seating capacity at the present time of from 8,000 to 10,000, and left in such a way that you could add to it later."

"As you probably know, the stock pavilion on our grounds is much too small for our purpose, and if building at this time there are quite a few changes which we would make in the construction. Each of the stock buildings which we have erected since ours has been improved upon. Our building is an exact reproduction of the one on the Illinois state fair grounds and was built the following year. Next Missouri built one then Minnesota, Wisconsin, Indiana and Kentucky at Louisville. I think the pavilion on the Indiana state fair grounds at Indianapolis is probably the most perfect of any that has been constructed. It cost them in the neighborhood of $100,000 to $110,000. Our building was built in 1902 and cost about $45,000. The outside dimensions are 175x225, the ring being 120x170. The main thing we have to complain of in our building is that the seating capacity is not half large enough. We contemplate at some future date adding another 100 feet in the length of this building, taking down the outside walls and rebuilding them to increase the seating capacity."

Andreas vs. Jensen.

District Judge Stewart rendered judgment in the case of Fred Andreas vs. Louis Jensen et al. Andreas is the man who furnished the cut stone for the Temple building and Jensen was the contractor who built the structure. Plaintiff sued for $7,663.07, less the amount of freight which had been paid by defendant on stone, alleging that Jensen had failed to pay him that balance due on material furnished in compliance with the contract between them. Jensen in his answer set up the allegation that he had been greatly damaged by delay in delivering the stone and specified the different ways in which he had sustained damage. Judge Stewart finds that there is due the plaintiff from the defendant the sum of $4,095.68 and that there was due the defendant from the plaintiff on the various items set out in his cross petition the sum of $1,434.50; that there is therefore now due plaintiff from defendant the sum of $2,661.18, with interest amounting to $325.99, making a total of $2,987.17.

Several delegations have been to Des Moines and other places and brought back reports favorable to the commission plan. It will open Friday, October 30, and be open from 10 o'clock in the morning until 10 o'clock in the evening except Sunday, when it will be open from 2 to 6 p. m. No admission fee is charged. A number of speakers have been invited to take part in the evening program. Governor Sheldon, Senator E. J. Burkett, Mayor F. W. Brown, Dr. Winnet, Mr. A. R. Talbot and others in the city have been asked to speak. Dr. S. R. Towne of Omaha, Dr. A. S. Mansfield of Ashland, Dr. E. C. Sward of Oakland, Dr. L. M. Shaw of Ocooca, Dr. R. C. McDonald of Fremont and others are also expected to be present and take part. The city of New York has just appropriated $20,000 out of the city treasury to bring to that city the tuberculosis exhibit which was a part of the recent tuberculosis congress in Washington.

The Teachers' Meeting.

The local committee of the state teachers' association is urging the people of Lincoln to open their homes to the three thousand visiting teachers who will be here this week. Many of these cannot be accommodated at the hotels. In a notice sent out the committee says: "The reputation of our city for hospitality demands that every visiting member of the association be provided with suitable accommodations within convenient reach of the places of meeting. In caring for so many many persons within so short a time, very definite plans must be made in order to prevent confusion."

Suit Against Burlington.

Mae L. Rowles, administratrix of the estate of Youel P. Husted, deceased, has brought suit in district court against the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad company asking damages in the sum of $2,000. The petition of plaintiff alleges that on the 24th day of March, 1908, Husted was struck by a Burlington train at the grade crossing in Burnham and instantly killed and his horse, buggy and harness destroyed. On the north side of the crossing the railroad runs through a deep cut, so that it is impossible for persons approaching the crossing to see trains coming.

The Tecumseh Theft.

Detective W. A. Bentley, who is investigating the theft of the banking books from the sheriff's office at Tecumseh just prior to the date of hearing the Chamberlain case in Beatrice, telephoned that he had secured information concerning the team that took the books from Tecumseh and that the team had been traced to Beatrice. Whether he has secured the names of the driver of the team and his helpers in loading the box of books into the wagon is not related. Johnson county has offered a reward of $500 for the arrest and conviction of the thieves, and other rewards have been offered.

These take the place for them of trip passes obtained on requisition. Issuing these passes was granted the other day, first as a concession to requests of the conductors.
