Mrs. J. C. McGowan who lives on West Front street sought succor from sorrow Friday afternoon by taking a heavy dose of chloroform. A committee of the G. A. R. is now out soliciting funds to meet the expenses of the Lincoln birth centenary on February 12th. This is a cause in which we can all cheerfully contribute our mite. It's one way of honoring the life of one of the country's greatest men, and it tends to teach patriotism for country to the young.

Messrs. Temple, Jeffers and Sandall, who attended the state fireman's convention at Norfolk, returned Saturday and report very interesting sessions. Members of the B. of R. T. and the O. R. C. are interesting themselves in the passage of a bill which has been introduced in the legislature providing that a freight train shall not exceed fifty cars, and making it unlawful for an official to require any employe to go upon or over the top of any moving train equipped with air brakes in working order. The bill also provides that a crew shall consist of an engineer, fireman, conductor and two brakemen. The bill is intended to protect the lives of employes and the traveling public, expedite the movement of freight and at the same time make the work of the train crew less arduous. It looks to us as though, in the face of the constantly increasing tonnage of freight trains, that the measure should pass. If the employes do not make some protest against the increased tonnage, 100 car trains will be the rule within the next few years.

Dies of Blood Poisoning.

Fred George, an old and highly respected citizen of Brady precinct, died early yesterday morning at a Kearney hospital of blood poisoning. The trouble originated several weeks ago, when he scratched his hand on a nail while cleaning out a meat barrel. The wound was not considered serious at the time, but later blood poisoning set in, and as a final resort he went to the hospital for treatment, but the poison had so permeated his system that the case was beyond medical skill.

The deceased had been a resident of Brady precinct for many years and had accumulated much property, but recently made a division of his real estate between his seven children. In addition to his holdings in this county he owned valuable real estate in Saline county.

Omitted Evening Session.

The secretary of the Maxwell farmers' institute inadvertently omitted the program for the evening session of February 2d. The exercises for that evening will consist of an address on small fruit by Mr. Marshall and a talk on the value of studying domestic science by Miss Rowan.

Timmerman's proposed 75-room lodging house, with cafe connected, would serve to help out the deficiency in hotel accommodations. This being true, he should be encouraged in the project.

Some Facts Concerning the Revival.

Over one hundred people have in some way shown personal interest in the step toward christian living in the past few weeks. Of this number seventy-five have made definite surrender and open profession of salvation through Jesus Christ. Thirty-three of these were men. Most all of those others who have not gone all the way but have openly shown interest were men. Among the converts four gave as their church preference Christian, eight Presbyterian, eight Methodist, several had no preference, and forty preferred the Baptist church. Twenty-two of these have already been baptized, two have been received otherwise, two stand approved for baptism and the rest are waiting to come before the church as soon as possible. These figures represent just the work accomplished during the special meetings in the hall. The money handled in doing this work has been about $525. This includes traveling expenses $160; actual running expenses about $200, and free will offering to the evangelist and his wife $169.00; and only $65 of this total amount came from outside the Baptist congregation, aside of course from the evening collection. All this is gratifying especially when it is remembered that the evangelist was here only two weeks.

But the special interest was here long before he came and will continue on. The Baptist church building has not been large enough to hold the crowds at the evening service now for many weeks, and the work has been multiplying and the membership of the church increasing rapidly. Since the first of December nearly forty members have been received into the church. Out of thirty-two baptisms fifteen have been males, eight of them have been heads of families. As said above, the interest will continue and the good work will be done in regular services of the church. The ordinance of baptism will be administered again next Sunday night, and this will be the case, no doubt, each Sunday evening for some time to come. Those wishing to attend these services must come early, as was the case last Sunday night. By 7:35 the house was packed to the door, including the choir chairs, extra chairs in the rear and the Sunday school junior chairs. Then large crowds were turned away.

Next Monday night a reception will be given for all the new members of the church. This will be held in the Unitarian hall 7:30.

Plain Facts About the Hair.

It is the duty of every one who is interested in hair preservation to learn enough about the subject to tell whether an advertisement for a hair remedy is reasonable or unreasonable. In this connection, the United States Post Office department has begun a much needed campaign against false and misleading statements in advertisements in general. While this work is highly commendable and should be greatly extended, still at the same time it tends to paternalism rather than to personal self-reliance. IF YOU know that the claims for a hair remedy are unreasonable and untrue, that knowledge will save you money and prevent disappointment.

The trouble lies in the fact that certain over-ambitious Proprietors employ advertising writers who do not know the composition of the remedies they write about, and even if they did, they are not expected to know the therapeutic action of the various ingredients. Two very familiar and oft repeated statements are, that the hair must be watered and fed just like a plant, and that the color of the hair, once destroyed, can be restored, by natural process. While both of these statements are false in every particular, it requires some little knowledge of the hair follicle to understand why the statements are false.

The hair follicle is a pear shaped sack in the scalp that holds the hair root. At the bottom of the hair follicle and extending up into it for a short distance, is a nipple shaped projection that remains in the scalp when a hair root is forcibly pulled out. This projection is the hair papilla from which the hair "root" grows. The continuous addition to the bottom of the hair root, forces the hair proper out through the scalp.

The hair papilla is surrounded by the hair root, which thus takes a bulbous form. Above the hair root or bulb—which occupies about three-fourths of the entire follicle—is the neck of the hair follicle, below which the most penetrating fluids known to Medical Science cannot penetrate. Therefore, the story of feeding the starved and impoverished hair roots with an external application is all a myth.

The short portion of the hair follicle above its neck opens somewhat like a funnel and is filled with the outer scalp skin. Opening into this outer portion are the highly important oil or sebaceous glands which, from their location, are most exposed to disease. When these oil glands become infected with a certain microbe growth (the cause of dandruff) there is hair disease and finally hair death. Fortunately this outer portion of the hair follicle can be treated by carefully rubbing into the scalp a suitable remedy. What remedy should be used? Manifestly one that will destroy the growth that causes dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair.

Newbro's Herculicide is the first remedy that was prepared for the particular purpose of destroying this invisible vegetable growth. In fact, it is called the "ORIGINAL remedy that kills the dandruff germ." Newbro's Herculicide was not made until after Prof. Unna, of Hamburg, Germany (ask your doctor about him) discovered that dandruff is a highly contagious disease caused by a microbe. The almost marvelous success of Newbro's Herculicide has caused advertising writers to claim germicidal properties for other hair remedies, many of which were on the market years before Prof. Unna's discovery.

Do you think that this new claim for old remedies is a reasonable one? Remember, that the hair gets its life, color and strength direct from the blood, and that good blood, deep breathing and sunlight favor hair development. Outdoor exercise, to insure free circulation in the scalp, also scalp massaging for the same purpose, are very helpful. Worry, indigestion and sedentary habits oppose hair growth, while the dandruff germ will actually destroy the hair, unless it is eradicated and kept out of the scalp with Newbro's Herculicide.

Herculicide is delightfully cooling and refreshing to the scalp and almost marvelous results sometimes follow its continued use. It stops itching of the scalp almost instantly.

YOUR MONEY will be refunded if Herculicide is not as represented.
