Dies From Injuries.

Henry Mills, who was thrown from a horse on Dewey street a week previous, died at the Pulver hospital Tuesday night from the injuries sustained. The condition of the man became critical a few days before his death, and an incision made in his abdomen revealed the fact that his intestines had been torn loose and were filled with blood and poisonous matter. The physicians at that time saw but little hope of his recovery.

The deceased was of English birth and had not been long in this section. So far as known he has no relatives in this country.

A funeral service conducted by Rev. Chapman was held Wednesday evening and the remains interred in the city cemetery.

Her affliction is of a nervous nature, and Mr. Geyer had just returned with her from Omaha, where he had an examination made by a specialist.

Down on the Union Pacific lake east of town there is estimated to be from ten to twelve thousand tons of ice ten and twelve inches thick going to waste. This is the second crop of the season, and is not needed by the Union Pacific company. It is said that insufficient ice to meet the demands of city consumption has been housed, yet there are no houses to place this ice now wasting.

Six suits for personal damages, aggregating $180,000, against the Union Pacific Coal company, for the death of six of its employes in the terrible Hanna disaster on March 28, 1908, when about seventy-five miners lost their lives, were filed in the district court at Cheyenne Monday by H.
