Twenty-one farmers marketed hogs in North Platte Tuesday and the total sum received by them was in the neighborhood of two thousand dollars. W. C. Landry, of Gandy, marketed nine that brought him $190.08. The hogs that are being marketed are a little light in weight; this being due to the high price of corn, farmers not caring to feed more of the grain than is actually necessary to put the hogs in marketable shape. The prices paid this week has been $6.35 and $6.40.

At the council meeting Tuesday evening it developed that the present mayor and councilmen are in favor of eventually rooting all saloons and billiard halls off Dewey street. Such a change cannot, of course be made this year, for there are no buildings on the side streets which the present Dewey street saloons could rent. Other towns have ruled saloons off the main thoroughfares, and North Platte sooner or later will probably follow the same plan.
