TUESDAY MAY 4, 1909.

Dispatches from Africa state that in the first real hunt ex-President Roosevelt killed three lions in one day and his son Kermit brought down another. Roosevelt is evidently as fearless and strenuous as a hunter as he was a president and uses a gun as effectively as he did the "big stick."

the latter proposition will win. The continuance of saloons. The result in Lincoln will have more or less influence throughout the state.

The Burlington railroad has adopted the merit system for its employes and abolished the practice of suspension as a corrective measure. The new order became effective Saturday under an order issued by Second Vice President Willard. A record will be kept of each man and if an employe loses his place it will be because of a bad record. An employe guilty of disloyalty, drunkenness or insubordination will be dismissed from service and will not be reemployed, and one whose service record indicates that he is an unsafe or unfit man will be dismissed. Promotions will be made as in the past. An employe, upon a request in writing, will be given at any time a copy of his service record.

Democrats Hard to Please.

When the tariff bill was first reported to the house, being the product of republican hands, of course it did not please the democrats. Not all of them knew just why, but it was their habit to kick. They turned to the president to do about it, but Mr. Taft kept still and see for yourself what a superb stock of vehicles we have to show the good people of North Platte. Come in any day. was berated by the democrats for not bringing pressure on the house leaders for a bill which met their ideas of what the republicans had promised.

The tariff bill in due course of time went to the senate, was amended and reported back to that body, and still the president has kept his own counsel, at least so far as taking the democrats into his confidence. Through it all Mr. Taft has simply referred inquirers to his speeches and letters during the campaign and since, but all the baiting of his opponents has not been able to drive him to mix prematurely in with the legislative work of framing the tariff bill.

The plan to goad the president into making an issue with congress having failed, his democratic opponents have taken another tack. The efforts of men whose views are similar to those ex-pressed by Mr. Taft to shape the tar-just that sort of harness, and would be iff along those lines is being denounced pleased to have your orders. as indirect coersion of congress on the part of the president. Mr. Taft still declines to gratify his political enemies by calling them off and consequently there is more woe and unhappiness in the democratic camp. While the heathens rage Mr. Taft continues to smile and when the smoke has all cleared away the chances are he will in the main have had his way, which was plainly blazed out during the campaign.
