What Is Going On at the National Capital.

THE REPORT OF THE PERSON OF TH

"Teddy" Absent, Capital Men Drink Tea

WASHINGTON .- After a seven-year lapse during the Roosevelt administration men are again giving teas, because President Taft does not consider ten drinking mollycoddish.

During the last year of the Rooserelt administration men at tens were very scarce. Even the diplomats who were careless of Roosevelt's vigorous ly expressed views (which often they did not understand) finally yielded to the influence that eventually caused but a handful of them to be present. Teas in the afternoon practically were wiped off the social slate.

Now this is all changed. Even the United States army is becoming host at teas, and Capt. Sherwood A. Cheney gave a tea recently to Miss Roosevelt. daughter of the man who believed that an officer who would be host at a tea was no soldier. The officers at Fort Myer and the Marine barracks expect-soon to give teas. That tea of Capt. Chency was the third big ten of the season, although the first to be given by an American. Two other large affairs were presided over, one by the secretaries of the German embassy on the occasion of the Emperor William's birthday and the other by the Marquis de Villalobar. the Spanish minister, who took advantage of the occasion to receive "who is who" in Washington by way of official introduction, although his transfer to Lisbon had been gazetted by his government three weeks previ-

The "five o'clock tea" is considered by Washington hostesses who have the spirit of continental entertaining as a happy medium between the breakfast and the dinner. Breakfast I've been out in my little town in the usually occurs at an hour when men are already busy with their affairs, while the dinner is looked upon as too ponderous With the beginning of the Easter eason the president and Mrs. Taft will again inaugurate their lawn parties, which is a different name for afternoon teas. Meanwhile, Lent is in the propitious season for such informal entertainments, especially of an

Washington men would now be giving more teas if they lived in quarters suitable for such affairs. The one hotel in Washington that is actually giving a tea hour does not appeal to the smartest.

Teas at the Chevy Chase club, at the Country club and similar places are also considered disadvantageous. First, the distance is too great, and attendance at them and the return home to change for dinner requires much time.

Hostesses in the capital do not deny that teas without men are very instpid.

With the presidential approval of this revival of afternoon teas-in fact, with the desire of Mr. Taft to see his assistants and the naval and military officers sparkle a little more in the social firmament-there is no question that the tea will become within the next twelvemonth the most satisfactory and popular social function. They are also comparatively inexpensive, and for this reason many men who cannot afford to give large parties of formel character will have an oppor-

A LONESOME SUNDAY

"Nope, I wouldn't go so far as to say that Washington is a lonesome town to live in," observed a western man who recently came back to Washington to live after an absence of several years, "but it certainly did seem to me like one vast oasisless desert last Sunday for a fact,

"Lest Sunday was my first Sunday in Washington since I got back here. west for a number of years, and only got back here a couple of days before last Sunday.

When I lived here before I only knew one family intimately. I knew a lot of folks, of course, in a stiff, dis tant sort of way, and was acquainted with the people in the house where I had my room just well enough to exchange nods with them when I met them on the stairs going out or com-

But there was only one family that I knew well enough to go and visit with.

"The man was a chap I used to play marbles and shinny with back in the little western town where we were raised together. He came to Washington years before I did, married, began to raise a family, and when I got here the family was nice ly settled in a flat over in George

"His wife was a mighty nice little Washington woman, and the kids were interesting and lively. Used to enjoy going over to see 'em when 1 was here before above all things. My visits over to Georgetown at that time were right frequent. They'd let me sit around the flat for a few hours ev ery Sunday, and make me stay to dinner more often than not, and I sure used to enjoy those visits a heap. Enjoyed the dinners, too, after 'rassling' around for what I could get at my boarding house.

"After dinner the man and I'd light cigars that I'd contribute as my share of the entertainment, and we'd sit down in his den and talk about the way he used to lick me, or I licked him, when we were playing hookey from school back in the little western town, and cross-question each other about what became of all the boys that belonged to our particular gang. While we thus talked his wife'd come in and sit down and listen to us with her hands in her lap, and tell us that we weren't much better than huge, irresponsible kids yet-for we'd guffaw and holler so that it's a wonder the felks in the other flats didn't rap on the walls or complain to the janitor. I always hated to get up and come away, I used to enjoy my visits over in that little Georgetown flat so "I reached there along about two o'clock in the afternoon, and it all looked so natural around that neighborhood that I guess I shortened my stride in my eagerness to push the electric button of that flat.

I remembered just the button to push, and I gave it three short pushes, like I'd always done-three pushes being the regular, understood signal that I was the applicant for admit-

"I waited for the little clicks in reply that I'd been accustomed to, signifying that the vestibule door had been unbolted, or unbarred, or unlocked-however it's done I never could make out-from the flat above.

"But the little clicks didn't come. "That seemed queer. They'd always been home at 2 o'clock on Sundays, and it didn't seem possible that their church services could last as long as that.

"So I gave three more pushes at the button and waited again for the replying clicks. But again the clicks falled to come. "Then I felt something must be qualities that are embodied in either but I put them on then so's I could look to see if my friend's card was and carefully measured vegetarian the letter box. CONVINCING PROOF

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

What is the use of procrastinating in the face of such evidence as the following letters represent? If you are a sick woman or know one who is, what sensible reason have you for not giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial? For 30 years we have been publishing such testimonial letters as these—thousands of them—they are genuine and honest, too, every one of them. Mrs. George May says:

Mrs. S. J. Barber says:

"I think Lydia E. Pinkham's Vege-table Compound is the best medicine in the world for women—and I feel it my duty to let others know the good it has done for me. Three years ago I had a tumor, to be removed by an operation or I could not live more than a year, or two, at most. I wrote Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Maes., for advice, and took 14 bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and today the tumor is gone and I am a perfectly well woman. I hope my testimonial will be of benefit to others."—Mrs. S. J. Barber, Scott, N. Y.

Mrs. E. F. Hayes says:

"I was under the doctor's treatment for a fibroid tumor. I suffered with pain, soreness, bloating, and could not walk or stand on my feet any length of time. I wrote to Mrs. Pinkham for advice followed here
