The excellent business conditions of North Platte and the country tributary is evidenced by the constantly increasing receipts at the freight depot. Each month shows an increase over the same month of the preceding year, and each year is greater than the one preceding. This condition speaks well for the town and adjacent section.

A. Kunkle, who was in from the burned range district yesterday, says the grass is slowly starting and with plenty moisture there would soon be pasture. He does not, however, believe that there will be a hay crop no matter how much rain may fall. He considers the hay proposition a very serious one.

Yesterday was the warmest day of the season, the temperature reaching 94. Quite a wind blew during the afternoon.

That the high winds of the past week or two together with the lack of moisture have done irreparable harm to the small grain must be admitted. The Birdwood Table, the South Table and even the valley lands have felt the effects of the strong gales, and great havoc has been wrought in the fields of small grain sown this spring. The winter wheat does not appear to have suffered to as great an extent from the drifting dirt, however. The lack of moisture during the latter end of the winter enabled the strong winds to successfully "boost" the loose dirt with the usual result. In places the loose dirt has been a foot or more in depth in some of the roads. The light rainfall of two weeks ago did some good and for the time prevented the wind from damaging the grain crops, but the country must have rain else it will be confronted by a grave situation ere long.—Sutherland Free Lance.
