Indian Card Club Entertains.

The Indian Card Club, composed of twenty ladies, were hostesses at a high five and dancing party given last evening at Masonic hall, and certainly it was a most enjoyable juncture to the sixty guests present. The attendants were all in a most congenial mood, there was a lack of stiff formality, and the rooms rang with the merry peals of laughter throughout the evening. Eighteen tables were placed in use for the high five games, at the end of which it was found that Mrs. J. H. Stone and J. B. Hayes had won the first prizes, while the consolatory emblems were awarded to Mrs. D. T. Quigley and E. J. Vanderhoof. The hostesses and guests were seated at two long tables decorated with spring flowers and were served to seasonable refreshments by Misses Hildegarde Clinton, Virginia Bullard, Mayme Pizer, Margaret Jones, Marie McCabe, Helen Waltemath, Irma Huffman and Carrie Marti. It was while surrounding these tables that the conviviality reached its zenith and the mirth producers re-established their reputations. That it was a lively gathering none present will gainsay. Following the refreshments the floor was cleared and dancing was indulged in until after midnight.

The members of the club were the recipients of many compliments from the guests for the very enjoyable manner in which they had been entertained.

Drawing Inferences.

President Lincoln once told the following story to D. H. Bates, manager of the war department telegraph office: "I'm like an old colored man I knew. He spent so much of his time preaching to the other slaves it kept him and them from their labors. His master told him he would punish him the next time he was caught preaching. "But, marse," said the old man, with tears in his eyes, 'I always has to draw inferences from Bible texts when dey comes in ma hand. I jes' can't help it. Can you, marse?' "Well," said his master, 'I suspect I do sometimes draw inferences. But there is one text I never could understand, and if you can draw the right inference from it I'll let you preach to your heart's content.' "What is de text, marse?" asked the colored man. "'The ass snuffeth up the east wind.' Now, what inference do you draw from that?" "Well, marse, I's never heard dat text befo' nobow, but I 'spects de inference am she got to snuff a long time befo' she get fat."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Memorial Day Proclamation.

I, T. C. Patterson, Mayor of North Platte, most respectfully request our citizens to cease their usual avocations and amusements on Monday, May 30th, to the end that the day may be fittingly commemorated by appropriate ceremonies and by placing of flowers and garlands upon every mound that marks the last resting place of our departed and heroic dead. These men died that the Nation might live. We honor ourselves when we pay tribute to their memory.

Let us not fail to pay tribute also to the men who wore the gray, remembering that they too were American soldiers. We were once enemies but now friends. The long dark night is over, at last we are a united people.

Given under my hand this 20th day of May, 1910. T. C. PATTERSON, Mayor.

(Communicated) Frank Nugent, the Maxwell lumberman was seen on the streets a few evenings ago. On inquiring what caused him to carry such a proud look, we learned that the stork visited at his home on the 18th and left a seven pound boy. Coming on the appearance of Halley's Comet makes Frank think he has been especially honored. Frank is a hustling fellow and we are glad to learn of his good fortune in securing a permanent young man to assist him in his business.
