Announcement.
I hereby announce myself as a candidate for re-election for representative of the 54th district subject to the approval of the republicans at the August 16th primaries.

I have no extended platform, but agree if elected to work for the passage of good progressive legislation and for the best interests of the district and state. As this is census year the next session will be the proper time to redistrict the state and I consider it very important that this be done and that the west gets proper representation.

Respectfully submitted,
B. K. BUSHEE.

F. L. Mooney has purchased of E. R. Goodman the lot on the corner of Third and Ash street and expects to erect a residence thereon some time in the future. This is one of the few very fine vacant resident lots within a reasonable distance of the city. The price paid was about $1,800.

A fifty mile car ride in the valley and south of the river Sunday afternoon showed this writer as good fields of corn as he has ever seen, and the acreage in all sections is something enormous. Wheat is being harvested and seems to be a very fair crop, but oats and barley is a failure.

J. B. McDonald, Frank McGovern, Dave Day and Clyde Fristo drove to a point west of Ogalalla in the former's car Sunday afternoon and visited in camp Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Patterson. Enroute home J. B. touched only high places and bounced his companions around considerably; Fristo touching the ceiling twice and sustaining bruises on the forehead and proboscis.

THE Gussard CORSETS
They lace in front.

They lace in front—as a result the abdomen is relieved of all pressure. Support is given to the organs and deep breathing is encouraged. They emphasize the long graceful line of the back, which artists agree is the most beautiful line in art. They gently but surely compel a correct standing position and a graceful carriage. We invite you to investigate these wonderful corsets.

A Defeated Conscience.

The secretary of the Kansas State Historical society tells a story about an early day Kansas Justice of the peace who was nameless here:

"This J. P.," said the secretary, "would marry a couple one day as Justice of the peace and divorce them the next as notary public."

One time, as the story ran, a man surrendered himself to this J. P.

"An' phwat's the matter?" asked the Judge.

"I killed a man out here on the prairie in a fight," was the reply. "I want to give myself up."

"You did kill him, sor?" asked the J. P.

"Yes, sir," was the reply.

"Who saw you?" asked the J. P.

"Nobody."

"An' nobody saw you kill 'im?"

"No, sir. Just we two were there."

"An' you're shure nobody saw you?" reiterated the J. P.

"Of course I'm shure," was the reply.

"This you're discharged," said the J. P., bringing his fist down on the table. "You're discharged. You can't 'criminate yourself. Fifty dollars, please!"—Kansas City Journal.

Trouble For Hubby.

At a recent tea party where the fare provided could not by any means be termed palatable a guessing game was instituted, and the lady who won it was asked to say what she would have as a prize. She greatly flattered her young hostess by requesting a slice of the cake with which some of them had desperately struggled at tea time.

"Why did you ask for that stuff?" a disappointed and still hungry youth asked her. "You know very well it isn't fit to eat."

"I have a definite purpose in view," answered the young lady, carefully placing the piece of cake where there would be no possibility of her forgetting it. "I mean to make my husband eat it—if necessary, to force it down his throat crumb by crumb—and thus convince him that someone here in the wide, wide world there is an even worse cook than he imagines his inexperienced young wife to be."—Pearson's Weekly.
