Etiquette and Danger.
"Ezra," said the farmer's wife, "I wish you wouldn't lean your elbows on th' table."

"Huh," sneered the farmer, "gettin' fastidious, ain't you? Mebbe you'll be warnin' me next to keep my knife outen my mouth an' tellin' me not to cool my tea in my sasser. But my granther kep' his elbows on th' table, an' so did my father, an', by heck, I'm goin' to lean on it as hard an' as long as I dun please, so there!"

Whereupon he leaned hard, so hard that the ancient table suddenly collapsed and sprawled out its legs and went down with a frightful crash of crockery.

"Well, you've gone an' done it now!" screamed the old lady. "That's a pretty mess, ain't it? Ef you'd had th' sense of a chipmunk you'd have knowed th' reason I didn't want you to lean on th' table wuz 'cause th' legs wuz rickety. An' I guess a little etiquette wouldn't hurt you none anyway, Ezra Doolittle, to say nothin' of savin' $2 wuth of family crockery."

And the disgrusted farmer stumbled out from the scene of wreckage and chased a harmless tramp three miles down the road with an ax handle.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.
