We are beginning to lay aside some choice articles for Christmas. Don't you think it would be well to make a very early selection this season.

DIXON, The Jeweler.

The strongest drama produced in this country in many years is what critics of various cities have called "The Other Woman," the play which Miss Blanche Walsh has chosen for her tour of this season. As the successor of "The Test," in which Miss Walsh appeared last year, it must indeed be a powerful vehicle for the display of Miss Walsh's wonderful abilities as an emotional actress, for that play was a tremendous hit. Miss Walsh herself chose "The Other Woman" from the great number of manuscripts submitted to her, regarding it as having more dramatic value than any drama in which she has appeared since the days of "La Tosca." It is the work of Frederic Arnold Kumer and will be given for the first time here at the Keith on Wednesday evening, Nov. 2nd.

HAS it occurred to you that clothing prices are everywhere the same? It is not the price you pay, but what you get for your price that counts.

When "shoddy" costs the same as Kirschbaum "All-Wool", hand-tailored Suits and Overcoats, a man were foolish to buy "shoddy". Don't experiment in buying clothes—buy sure values. Kirschbaum values are sure—whether you pay $15. or $35.

Over half-a-century's constant betterment should mean more to you than the product of the fly-by-night concern.

Overcoats made of every fabric and every model dictated by good taste and judgment, for young or old. Always the right garment for the individual and at the right price. Prices $15 to $25. Come in and look these Kirschbaum hand-made Clothes over—it will be worth your while if they merely post you on correct Style.

BRATT & GOODMAN.

A Dream and Its Sequel.

"In one of the East Indian border wars there was engaged an officer of high repute, the member of an ancient county family," says Mrs. Mayo in "Recollections of Fifty Years." One night the laird, his head, started from his sleep, exclaiming:

"There's the shot that has killed my brother!"

"His wife told him it was but a dream. He must have given an anxious thought to his brothers before going to sleep. Next day the pair were in the garden directing their gardeners when the laird suddenly exclaimed:

"Do you hear the bagpipes?"

"No," answered the lady. "I can hear nothing. I am sure there is no sound."

"Strange," said the laird, "for I can even hear what is played. It is 'The Flowers of the Forest Are A' Wife Away.'"

"A few hours later came the telegram reporting that the brother had been shot down by some border warrior and over his lonely grave the men of his regiment had played the pathetic air whose mysterious echo seemed to have reached the laird."

Shakespeare's Definition of Poetry.

What a pity it is that Shakespeare ever used that phrase "fine frenzy." It has become a faddish factor in the framing of foolish fancies. It is to the honor of Shakespeare, however, that he came nearer to giving the world the true definition of poetry than has any other man, for he did explain what constitutes the true art of poetry making, and from this we are enabled to know what Shakespeare considered poetry. Curiously enough, it is in the very passage where Shakespeare uses that unfortunate phrase "fine frenzy." Let us quote:

The poet's eye, in a fine frenzy rolling,
Doth glance from heaven to earth, from earth to heaven,
And as imagination bodies forth
The forms of things unknown the poet's pen
Turns them to shapes and gives to airy nothing
A local habitation and a name.

Hard to Understand.

Supposing some one should spring this on you rapidly and ask you what it meant: "Mare-zent-toats-deer-zent-toats-lam-sleatvly-ll-tle-kid-slea-tvly-too."

You would never think it was plain English, but it is. It is simply: "Mares eat oats; deers eat oats; lambs 'll eat ivy; little kids 'll eat ivy too."

You should say this over many times to yourself until you can roll it off very quickly, run the words together, and then when you try to confess that they can't understand it. They will feel quite foolish when you show them that it is common English and that it sounds odd only because the words are spoken fast and run in together. It is this running of the words in together which makes it hard for a foreigner to understand our language or us theirs.

—Omaha World-Herald.

England's Greatest Mine Fire.

The most serious colliery ever known in Britain was undoubtedly that which broke out at the Tawd valley mine, near Preston, in 1872. Thousands of pounds were spent in trying to get the flames under control, but they overcame everything and consumed some millions of tons of coal. A wall ten feet in thickness was built round the affected parts, but the heat cracked the masonry and brought it down as fast as it was rebuilt. However, in 1807 the river Tawd overflowed its banks and went pouring down into the mine. No fire could withstand such an immense volume of water hurled upon it, and, although the flames extended for 500 yards, they were quenched after having raged for a quarter of a century.—London Tit-Bits.

WHEN it gets toward fall the boys have to be well shod. The joy of bare-foot days is over and they demand that they be well and comfortably fitted. You can get this combination in our store; and whether for boys or men, we fit properly before we try to sell.
