Peace and Good Will.

At this time when all hearts are open to the fine influence of life, when joy is thrilling its happy impulses through each heart, and Christmas makes all men young, opening the flood-gates of love and helpfulness, we are naturally visited with the thought that Jesus Christ has done more for the race to which we belong than all the seers and wise men and prophets and philosophers of all the ages.

A merry song of "Gloria In the highest, unto men Be peace", it is the story That repeats itself again.

A merry smile of greeting With heaven breaking through Will glorify each meeting On Christmas Day for you.

A merry eye to twinkle I wish for you to-day, Like golden stars as-sprinkle Along the happy way.

A merry heart of gladness, We need it now and then. To smile away the sadness And show good-will to men.

A merry voice of laughter, That ripples like a stream, Will babble on hereafter To some sea-heart of dream.

A Merry Christmas, ever, May merriment stay true, And fill each new endeavor With joy and Christ, for you.

Why Buy Any Red Cross Seals. Suppose, in your newspaper, you were to see this head-line heavy-typed across the middle of the page DEAD—200,000 AMERICANS!!

A MILLION MORE IN DESPERATE PERIL! It would startle you, wouldn't it? Undoubtedly. But the sensational expression of the fact, not the fact itself, would administer the jolt to your faculties.

What are you going to do about it? What can you do about it? Buy a red cross seal.

Sounds absurd, doesn't it? In the face of the most potent scourge of the human race, devastation more sweeping than that of war or earthquake, you are invited to do your part with a penny stamp.

Fifty million seals means $500,000. What can $500,000 do toward saving a million consumptives? Not much, it is true. But it can do miracles toward preventing the further spread of the disease through eighty million Americans.

So, whether you buy one of the gay little red and green seals to put on the back of an envelope, or ten thousand wherewith to paper a room, you will be doing your part in the great campaign. A million for tuberculosis is its battle cry, and the red cross flag on the seal, its banner.

SMOKING MERRIHUANA.

It Fills Mexican Peons With Something Like Delirium Tremens.

Water bugs and worms are among the terrors in which the Mexican peon delights. He catches his bugs as they skim along the top of fresh water ponds, drying them and then eating them with as much zest as an American boy eats peanuts. As near as the peon can explain it, their flavor is something on the order of the chestnut, but as no white man has ever tried eating water bugs, or if he has doesn't dare confess it, the exact taste of these Mexican morsels can't be described very accurately.

The peons do, too, on the nice, fat pulque worm. This insect is about two inches long and half an inch thick. They fry the dainty in grease and pack it in brown paper packages of a dozen worms, which fetch 2 cents a paper. An industrious pulque worm collector makes a good living.

The worm inhabits the maguery or pulque plant, from which is distilled the agua miel, or honey water, of Mexico. After twenty-four hours' fermentation it is very intoxicating. After the Mexican has primed himself with several drinks of agua miel and has smoked half a dozen cigarettes made of the dried leaf of the merrihuana weed and brown paper he is ready for any crime of violence.

This combination of stimulant and narcotic has the effect of deluding the victim into thinking that his enemy—and every peon has a choice collection of enemies—is a pygmy in stature. At the same time it gives him an idea that he is tremendously strong and wonderfully brave. So he sallies forth to make mincemeat of his enemy or enemies and, as a rule, lands in the local calaboose.

One of the peculiar effects of merrihuana smoking is to distort the size of all animals, making them of enormous size and horrible shape. The smoker is filled with a horrible fear, something like the horrors brought on by delirium tremens. A kitten or a puppy to his distorted vision appears as some terrible creature. A common sight in Mexico is to see a swarthy "greaser," armed to the teeth, flee in terror from a small dog, while he would fearlessly attack any man with his knife or his machete.

A FAMOUS RACE.

The Greatest Steamboat Contest on the Mississippi River.

The greatest race ever run on the Mississippi was between the Natchez, a boat built in Cincinnati and commanded by Captain T. P. Leathers, and a New Albany boat, the Robert E. Lee, under Captain John W. Cannon. There was spirited rivalry between the two vessels, and when the Natchez made the fastest time on record between New Orleans and St. Louis (1,278 miles in 3 days 21 hours 58 minutes) Captain Cannon resolved to beat it. He engaged the steamer Frank Pargoud and several fine boats and arranged for them to meet him at various points up the river with wood and coal. Then he had his boat cleared of all her upper works likely to catch the wind or make the vessel heavier.

On Thursday, June 20, 1870, at 4:45 p. m., the Robert E. Lee steamed out of New Orleans. The Natches followed five minutes later. The race had been advertised in advance and was now awaited with gathering interest at all the river towns. Large crowds were assembled at Natchez, Vicksburg, Helena and other large places.

Between Cairo and St. Louis the Natches afterward claimed to have lost seven hours and one minute on account of a fog and broken machinery. The Robert E. Lee, however, was not delayed and arrived in St. Louis thirty-three minutes ahead of the previous record established by her competitor. Fifty thousand people from the house-tops, the levee and the docks of other steamers welcomed the winner as she steamed into port. Captain Cannon was the lion of the hour. The business men gave a banquet in his honor.—Travel Magazine.

Not a Savant.

A Harvard man told at a dinner in Cambridge a story about ignorance. "Some siffors were being banqueted in Philadelphia at St. George's hall," he said, "and a young bluejacket, pointing to a superb silver caster, said: 'Waiter, bring up that 'ere chandelier.'"

"That ain't a chandelier," the waiter answered, laughing. "That's a cruet." "Well, never mind what it is," said the sailor. "Bring it up. We ain't all been to college."

Both Affected.

"Whenever she gets to thinking how much they're in debt it affects her nerves." "Huh! The way it affects her husband is singular." "How singular?" "Just singular; it affects his nerve." He tried to borrow a hundred from me today.—Catholic Standard and Times.

The Language of Love.

"Has he proposed yet?" "Not in so many words." "That's no answer. Proposals never do come in words. They consist of sighs, 'em, haws and gurgles."—Cleveland Leader.

A BIG FAT TURKEY

is one of the requisites for a Christmas dinner, but for the male members of your dinner party a good cigar is also necessary. We make cigars of acknowledged merit, they have that flavor that all smokers like. The goodness is found in our five cent cigar as in the ten cent, but of course there is more of it in the latter. And by the way, why not give your husband, father or gentleman friend a box of our cigars as a Christmas present?
