Dies of Pneumonia

Charles Finney, aged sixty-five, died at the home of his daughter Mrs. Seth Sherwood early yesterday morning, after an illness of about a week. Death was due to pneumonia, the case being well developed before he indicated to any one that he was sick. He had been working for Al Tift and used a room in the barn on east Sixth street as sleeping quarters.

The deceased was well known in town having lived here for twenty-five years. He leaves a wife, two sons and several daughters.

Hospital for Consumptives

Representative Bushe, of this district, has introduced a bill appropriating $100,000 for the erection and maintenance of a state hospital for indigent consumptives. This bill has the endorsement of the state medical association, and it would seem is a very worthy one. Not only would tuberculosis patients be treated, but from the hospital would emanate actions to prevent growth of the disease.

Major Walker's career as a soldier was as brilliant as it was prolonged, and his service to his country during the civil war and in the Indian campaigns well entitles him to this recognition from the government.

J. B. McDONALD,

THE HOME OF GOOD CLOTHES.

The Lyceum.

Next number is one of the best. "Mistakes of Life Exposed," By "Bob" Seeds.

My friend, I am an old man and have had my troubles, but most of them never happened. This is rather a loose-fitting key to the message of the lecture, "Mistakes of Life Exposed."

The lecture is humorous. The newspaper say so. Were we to shed tears over life's mistakes, people coming out to hear them exposed would have to wear mackintoshes.

The lecture is strung together with good stories—pickings from everywhere—and folks say tell them right for a farmer.

I laugh and I like to hear others laugh. To make people laugh is to make them good.

Between smiles I try to put a little more love into the hearts of men and women; try to turn their faces toward the sun; try to expose the little mistakes from which the big mistakes grow; try to pull people over onto the bright side, that they and their neighbors may be happier.

Audiences report that they have been pleased. That pleases me, and so I travel on, growing happier and happier every day.

Jan. 25, 1911, Keith Theatre. Lecture begins at 8:30. Admission 50c. Bring tickets marked "O"

A Valuable Work.

On sale at the book stores of C. M. Newton and H. W. Rincker; Price $1.25; "North Platte and its Associations." This work is neatly bound and illustrated, and tells of stirring incidents that took place when North Platte was a rough frontier town, and traces the progress of the city since that time. Associations of Cottonwood Springs and Fort McPherson are treated at length; and accounts of Indian atrocities and battles given. On the whole, this book ought to find a place in every home in North Platte.

Rosa Bonheur's Humble Lover. When asked why she had never married Rosa Bonheur always answered: "Nobody ever fell in love with me. I have never been truly loved." More than one man, however, really worshipped her. But she inspired such deep respect that no man seems to have dared to reveal his feelings to her. There is a curious example of this fact, taken from the humble walks of life. On several occasions Rosa Bonheur had done service for a workman who throughout his life spent his savings in buying engravings of her principal pictures and photographs of herself. His simple dwelling was a temple to her kindness. He described himself as "the earthworm in love with a star." The person here referred to—E. A. Bauray of Clermont-Ferrand—tells me that Rosa Bonheur once asked him why he was not married, and he replied by asking her the same question. Here was her answer: "Well, sir, it is not because I am an enemy of marriage, but I assure you that I have never had time to consider the subject."—"Reminiscences of Rosa Bonheur."

An Ill Fated City.

The ill fated Sicilian city of Messina was almost entirely destroyed by an earthquake in 1693 and greatly damaged by another in 1783. In 1743 the plague carried off nearly half of its inhabitants. In 1784 the city was visited by a terrible quake and tidal wave, which finished its destruction. In fact, it would be difficult to find anywhere a city with a more mournful history than Messina, which has been practically destroyed twenty-one times during the past 3,000 years.

Below the Average.

Apropos of loss of friends somebody was saying one day before Morgan, the great calculator of lives, that they had lost so many friends, mentioning the number, in a certain space of time, upon which Morgan, coolly taking down a book from his office shelf and looking into it, said, "So you ought, sir, and three more."—Thomas Moore.
