FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 10, 1911

Investigation proves that at the last election in Omaha they voted dead men. This leads the Kearney Hub to remark that Dahmann's "pull" must have been mighty strong to reach beyond the grave.

A well known resident of Lincoln announces that he will be a candidate for mayor of that city on a wideopen platform. There will, of course, be a candidate whose platform will be the opposite, so the issue will be well defined. Lincoln has had a year with the "lid on;" it is doubtful if the voters will favor it taken off.

If the county option measure now before the legislature fails to pass it will again be the issue in politics two years hence. As the question is one that should have been settled out of politics—decided by a direct vote of the people of the state—it would undoubtedly be best for all if it were settled now instead of having it dragged through future campaigns.

Talking to a citizen yesterday he called attention to the prices at which real estate in the city is selling, and quoted a dozen sales where the selling price was higher than the same properties sold for one, two or three years previously. It is evident that the claim that real estate values are beyond a conservative price, is hardly borne out by the rapidity with which good residence property is picked up when placed on the market.

Representative Kinkaid has secured an amendment to the agricultural appropriation bill which provides that from the nurseries of the Nebraska national forest the secretary of agriculture may furnish young trees free, so fast as they may be spared, to residents of the territory covered by "an act increasing the area of the homesteads in Nebraska." This act is generally known as the Kinkaid act and embraces the so called "sand hill" district of this state.

The president has put his party in congress to a sharp test. It has been talking of its desire to do something for the consumer and to ease the pinch of tariff taxes. Mr. Taft has now forced it to show whether this was more than arrant hypocrisy. In his attempt to compel the republican protectionists to show their hand, he ought to be aided by the democrats, who should lose no opportunity to press the trade agreement in congress by every parliamentary means at their command.—New York Post.

When Governor Aldrich sent a message to the legislature alleging election frauds in Omaha, the air became blue with denials from the metropolis. Now the Omahans admit that their elections have been fraudulent, and are willing that the legislative committee investigate and set things right. Even Mayor Dahmann admits that the laws do not sufficiently protect the ballot box and suggests a permanent board of registration who will do honest work. It is evident that after all the Governor did not wake up the wrong passenger.

More than 100 counterfeiters now serving sentences in federal and state prisons of the country are asking to be paroled under the law enacted at the last session of congress. Some of the applicants were the makers of some of the best bogus bank notes the secret service has ever taken. Others were molders of small coins and counterfeiters of stamps, comparatively insignificant in their class. They are serving sentences ranging from three to ten years. Having served one-third of their time they are eligible under the new law to apply to the parole board for release.

There is a difference of opinion among the republican members of the Nebraska delegation regarding re-appointment. Representative Norris declares that he is not only opposed to the Crumpacker resolution calling for a house of 433 members in the sixty-second congress, but that he would readily vote for a resolution fixing the membership of the house at 300 for all time. Representatives Kinkaid and Hinshaw are not only opposed to the Norris plan for three hundred members, but they are not content to have Nebraska lose one member, which would be the case if a resolution were adopted keeping the membership down to 301, as at present. Both members favor the Crumpacker resolution in order that Nebraska may continue to have six members and probably would vote for such a resolution in the house notwithstanding the action of the republican caucus.

Notable Railroad Expansion.

The decision of the directors of the Union and Southern Pacific railroads to spend $75,000,000 in double-tracking the line from the Missouri river to the Pacific ocean gives an idea of the magnitude of modern railway construction. Within a few years two new trans-continental lines have been opened, increasing to eight the number that have developed from the first single-track road which was laboriously pushed across the Rockies less than half a century ago. Now the announcement is made of the construction of more than the equivalent of this to accommodate traffic demands and as a mere incident of railway expansion.

The double-tracking of the Harriman roads is railroad development of a wholly legitimate kind. It involves no gambling in the securities of competing lines and offers no occasion for federal interference. On the contrary, it invites public approval of the management under which it has been initiated. The confidence in the future which this great construction work implies should have a good effect on general business conditions. Traffic development on the Pacific lines has more than justified the most sanguine expectations in the past, and there is no reason to believe that the preparations for its further growth have been made too soon.—New York World.

That Medicine Bow Line.

Further light on the railroad situation shows that the contracts will be for the completion of the work to Gering by August 15, although the expectation of the company is as was stated last week to have it actually done by July 1. The contract was not let Wednesday as was expected, the matter being held open until today, in order to let one or two contractors who had been late in getting over the ground a chance to get their bids in with the others.

With few exceptions the state papers accept it as a fact that the work is fully decided upon, although some of them fail to recognize the actual classification of this line as "double track," and thus are led to an idea of nothing but double track work in Nebraska.

The directors of the Union Pacific the first of the week formerly decided to spend seventy-five millions upon making the road completely double tracked from Omaha to the coast. This paper has frequently mentioned the fact that the Medicine Bow cut-off which is fully planned is in reality a part of the double track line-up, and it is proven by the fact that the so-called double track is only to go to Julesburg and that no more is mentioned until west of Medicine Bow. Julesburg is west of the junction of the Medicine Bow cut-off at O'Fallons, but that is to be built because of the Denver route. The recent acquisition of the Denver & Rio Grand by the Harriman interests harmonize with the whole plan.

At any rate we absolutely know that the Union Pacific regards this extension as a cut off and that it is to be built for that purpose. This contract is for thirty miles from Northport to Gering, and that will take to a point just west of the main road between Gering and Scotts Bluff. Whether the remaining twelve miles of the reported forty-two, or the entire distance to the state line, or the whole distance to Medicine Bow are to be built this year we cannot say.—Gering Courier.

Governor Aldrich has prepared a special message to submit to the legislature. It is said to contain information in regard to the needs of the state banking board to enforce the guaranty deposit act. The governor will ask for twelve state bank examiners instead of the five or six now on duty. The salaries and expenses of twelve examiners will reach $25,000 a year. If the legislature amends the law so as to eliminate that part which requires examiners to verify notes and other assets in banks, eight or nine examiners will be able to do the work.

George Reffor, living seven miles south west of town, will hold a public sale of 12 head of horses, 16 head of mules, farm machinery and household goods on February 21st, at 10 a. m.
