Quality Counts

and is the only thing that determines whether an article is cheap or dear. Our policy is always to give you quality first, last and all the time. Second, to know where to buy the goods that will give you satisfaction at a price that will let us sell them to you as low or lower than you buy them elsewhere at home or by sending away for them. We have never had to offer fake inducements to get business. Goods bought and taken home from us that you do not want for any reason will be taken back and your money refunded. Is this worth anything to you? We believe it is and that the steady progress this firm has made in the business world of our city proves it.

Elks Dedicate Their Fine New Home.

of F. J. McGovern and Charley Austin, with drapings and streamers of the Elks' colors—purple and white—a profusion of flags, and a number of elks' heads. Every room bore evidence of the decorators skill and the effect was very pretty.

The first evidence of the dedication day occurred at one o'clock in the afternoon when thirty-eight automobiles assembled at the home, and with the band occupying cars, proceeding to the depot to meet members arriving from the east, the members from Ogalalla, Paxton, Sutherland and Hershey having arrived on the morning train.

The reception and dedication of the building ranked pre-eminent as a social function; to use an inelegant expression, it was a "dressy" affair; at no previous function in North Platte had been seen so many elaborate gowns; so large a proportion of the men in evening suits. It was a gathering which included a greater percentage of North Platte's society folks than any previously held; a commingling of the society bud with the mature matron, each gowned most becomingly, and the whole comparing favorably in appearance with an assemblage which one would see in a larger and more wealthy city. It is not fulsome flattery to say that the men of North Platte who looked upon that gathering of ladies last night had reason to feel proud.

The interior of the building with its elaborate decorations, the wealth of cut flowers, potted plants and palms certainly presented a beautiful if not entrancing appearance to the four hundred in attendance. As the guests entered they were received by a reception committee of thirty. The first hour was in form a reception, and this was followed by the dedicatory exercises, in which the lodge officers recited the ritualistic ceremony. This completed, the address of the occasion was delivered by Mayor Ryan, of Grand Island, whose subject was along the line that each day presents its opportunity. He handled his subject well, illustrating with story, and giving some personal experience of lost opportunities. At the close of his address Mayor Dahlman, of Omaha, was introduced who made a short address, in which he complimented the energy of the Elks in erecting the building and the town for its enterprise. Preceding and following the addresses appreciated vocal solos were rendered by Miss Trovillo and Mrs. Edgar Schiller.

A buffet lunch was then served in the banquet hall. There were two punch bowls presided over by Misses Irma Huffman, Florence Iddings, Marie McCabe, Helen Waltemath, Hildegard Clinton and Lucille Wilcox. Dancing began at eleven o'clock and continued until about two this morning, this feature proving very enjoyable to the younger set. While the dancing was in progress on the third floor, a second orchestra furnished selections on the second floor.

Sigmund Mang Dies.
Sigmund Mang, living ten miles south east of town, died at three o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Death was due to a complication of blood poisoning and rheumatism, and while he had suffered with the latter for some time, it was not until the early part of the week that his condition became critical. The funeral was held from the residence this forenoon.

Mr. Mang came to Nebraska from Indiana in 1877, and settled in Lincoln county two years later. In 1881 he located on the land on which he had since made his home.

He leaves a wife and four children, Mrs. John Discoe, who lives near the Mang farm, Mrs. Bert Brown, John Mang and George Mang of this city.

The deceased was an industrious, straightforward man; one who was willing to help out his fellow man wherever possible, and his acquaintances much regret his death.
