A New Bank for North Platte

A new financial institution to be known as the Platte Valley State Bank will be launched in North Platte about August 1st. The organization was effected Tuesday evening by a party of North Platte and Wallace men, when the following officers were elected: President, Frank Pielsticker; vice-president, Julius Pizer; cashier, M. E. Scott, — Mehlm, asst. cashier; directors J. G. Beeler, J. W. Payne, C. H. Walter, C. A. Liston and Henry Mehlm. The authorized capital is $100,000 and the paid up capital will on the start be $50,000.

The room formerly occupied by Small's shoe store has been leased, and the furnishings will be ordered within a few days.

The officers and directors of the bank with one exception, are well known Lincoln county men. The president, Mr. Pielsticker, had for several years filled the position of cashier of the Wallace bank, and with his associates sold their interests a couple of weeks ago to embark in the banking business in this city. Mr. Pizer, the vice-president, is one of the leading merchants of North Platte, and has a high standing financially. The cashier, M. E. Scott, is a son-in-law of J. G. Beeler, and for some years has been in the banking business at Cuba, Ill. The assistant cashier is a son of Henry Mehlm, one of the leading business men of the south part of the county. The directors are men of heavy financial resources, Messrs. Walter, Liston and Mehlm being residents of Wallace, and Messrs. Beeler and Payne are of this city.

A third bank in North Platte has been contemplated for some time, and that we are to have one financed and managed by men so well known in the county is a matter of congratulation. It means a solid and conservatively managed institution.

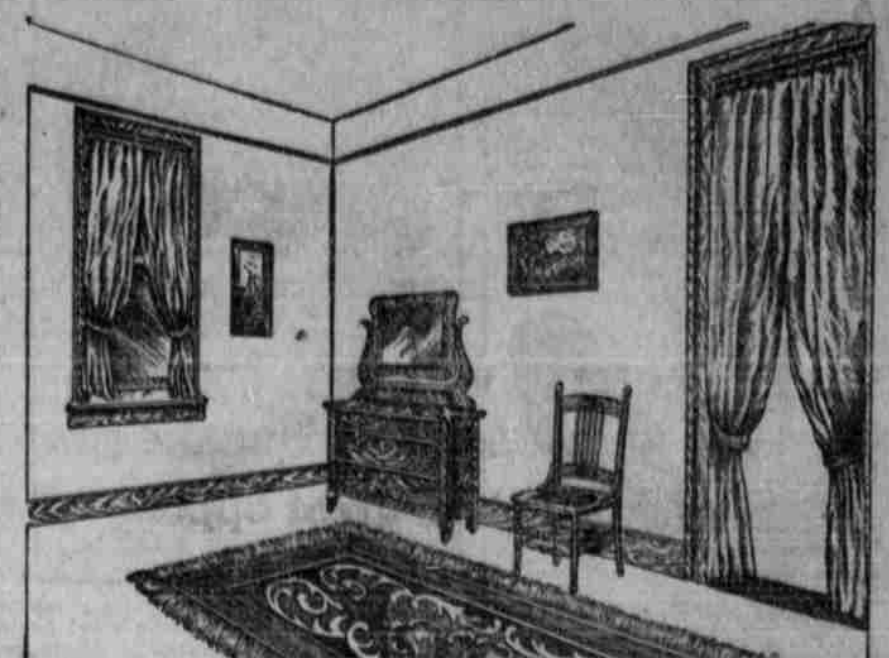

The establishment of the bank brings to North Platte Mr. Pielsticker, Mr. Scott and Mr. Mehlm, the latter two having families. They are the class of citizens we welcome.

Home First, the Outside After.

When you buy look first at home. If it is for sale in your town patronize your home town. If it is made in your home town patronize the maker. That's the way to make a better town, a better locality and larger home prosperity. If your competitor has the goods, walk into his shop and surprise him by giving him your patronage. Its dollars to doughnuts that when he wants something you have he will go and do likewise. As a result there are two new transactions to the credit of the business of your town, and of far more value, cordial relations are established, the influence of which on the spirit and advancement of your locality cannot be measured.

Then when you cannot get what you want directly at home, buy in Nebraska. Patronize Nebraska business houses, patronize Nebraska manufacturers, patronize the people of your own state, who are part of it, whose business helps to support the state, and whose growth and prosperity is an added asset to your own business, indirectly at least. After you have given your patronage to home people, all that home people are equipped to care for, there is enough business left that will go away from home to equalize all the business that comes into the state from outside sources. There is never any difficulty but that we will be reciprocal enough in spending our money away. There is always danger that we do not spend all that we can and ought to at home. What would happen to manufacturing industries of Nebraska if Nebraska made goods and materials were given first call and first opportunity when we, as individuals, go forth to buy? The manufacturing wealth and volume of business would double in an incredibly short time. What would happen if orders for goods sold in the state were all centered in the wholesale houses of Nebraska? The jobbing business of the state would double, the capital invested in the business would double, the number of people employed would greatly increase, the amount of taxable property would increase by leaps and bounds and the wealth and business, and even the population of the state, would take on figures. There need be no sacrifice whatever in building this home patronage proposition.—Lincoln Trade Review.

A bill providing for two national automobile highways across the United States was introduced in congress Wednesday by Congressman Hobson. One is proposed to follow the thirty-fifth parallel latitude, and the other to extend from Canada to Mexico along the twenty-third meridian west from Washington.
