Hershey, Neb.

A Washington dispatch states that the national progressive league may be counted upon to take a hand in the Nebraska senatorial campaign next year in behalf of Senator Norris Brown. Senator Bourne made a statement to this effect to some Nebraska gentlemen visiting in Washington a few days ago, declaring that Nebraska would do itself a great injustice if it failed to return Senator Brown, and added: "I would rather be defeated myself in Oregon than to see Brown defeated in Nebraska." This is sensible and timely talk that ought to carry proper weight in this state.

A Washington letter states that the republican presidential situation is rapidly narrowing down to two men, William Howard Taft and Robert LaFollette. It is conceded that Senator LaFollette is developing considerable strength, especially among the progressive element, but of course is not looked upon with favor by the old guard or standpatters. And while the latter do not like LaFollette, they are not enthusiastic for President Taft, mainly because he has chosen to "paddle his own canoe," that is he has not taken them as fully into his confidence as they desired. Certainly this can be said of President Taft—he has done what he considered best for the country regardless of what effect it might have on his re-nomination.

Good Roads Special—Fremont To North Platte.

The good roads special organized by the World-Herald and assisted by various commercial organizations for the purpose of promoting the cross-country road up the Platte River valley will leave Fremont June 5th at 8 a. m. by automobile. The special will be in charge of Dan V. Stevens of Fremont, and will be accompanied the entire trip by several prominent citizens of that town. Among them Ross L. Hammond, R. B. Schneider, T. L. Mathews, Paul Colson, Burneol Colson, Dr. Overgaard and Geo. Losey.

The idea of this organization is to promote good roads sentiment all over the state in general but particularly along the Platte River valley in order that trans-continental tourists may take this route in preference to all others. To bring about the cooperation of local authorities along the route from Omaha to North Platte, exclusive of Douglas county, a prize of $300.00 is to be given the township having the best road across it and a prize of $500 in cash will be paid to the county having the best road along this line. The time set for the judges to pass over the road will be sometime in September. This will be a trip made for the purpose of dedicating the road and will consist of a great number of automobiles and several hundred people. It will be one of the biggest events of the year in Nebraska.

The Good Roads Special which starts out Monday morning, June 5th, from Fremont will have as its mission a preliminary survey of the route with consultations with local committees and Good Road Meetings along the line wherever it is practical to arrange for them. The plan is to make the trip going to North Platte in three days stopping the first night in Central City, the second night in Kearney and the third night in North Platte, which will be the end of the run. It is expected that local commercial clubs and automobile clubs and boards of supervisors of each county through which the Good Roads Special passes will join in the boosting of this most commendable enterprise by meeting the good roads special at the county line and escorting it across the county, stopping wherever necessary to examine the especially difficult pieces of roads and considering the best way of repairing them.

The party will arrive in North Platte at four o'clock Wednesday, June 7th, and will remain here during the night. They suggest that a good roads meeting be called for that evening and the matter discussed.

Chance for Fitting Tribute.

In the announcement that the Wild West Show will exhibit in North Platte in August there is presented an opportunity for our people and the people of western Nebraska to pay a fitting tribute to Colonel Cody and the Wild West Show. It was in North Platte in 1882 that the Wild West Show was organized. Here were assembled the cowboys, the Indians, the buffaloes and the bucking bronchos that constituted the show. At that time the show was not what it is now; it was then modest in its equipment—today it stands at the head of the traveling amusement attractions of the world. For twenty-nine years the Wild West has delighted millions of people; it has exhibited in practically every civilized nation on the globe, and now after that long period Colonel Cody announces his farewell tour. In August North Platte people, and visitors to the city, will see Colonel Cody for the last time in the arena; it will probably be the last time we shall see the show exhibited on the very ground on which it was assembled. Would this not, therefore, be a splendid opportunity to give expression of our good-will to Colonel Cody, our appreciation of the advertising he has given North Platte and western Nebraska; should we not aim to make the date of the appearance of the Wild West here a red-letter day—the biggest day North Platte has ever had? Let's get busy.

King of the Cow Punchers.

Without money and without price in the singing of Charles McKinney, the man who sings to beat the band. Mr. McKinney will positively appear at the noon day concert of Kirsch's King of the Cow Punchers Band and sing in a highly cultivated, rich in melody voice so very powerful as to be heard above the entire instrumentation of this gigantic musical organization. To miss this one gratuitous number is parallel to refusing money as a gift. Take the word of a man who has spent his entire life in travel and has never slept twice in the same bed since his seventeenth birthday. He says "I have never heard of half his equal." Kirsch's King of the Cow Punchers is in keeping with the high order of all Mr. Kirsch's productions. In this small space it is impossible to give a correct outline of all the scenery. The scenic work is from the studio Messrs. LaFayette Gould and Wagner, 714-716 Broadway, New York. Messrs L. G. and W. design all of the scenery for the Academy of Music and the Grand Opera House in New York and the Chesnut St. Opera House, and the Empire Theatre in Philadelphia. This of itself, is sufficient evidence to satisfy the most exacting that Mr. Kirsch will offer only the best that money can buy for his patrons' pleasure. The company will appear in North Platte on Thursday June 8th.

If you haven't the time to do it, or if you don't know how, just send it to us. We are doing a great deal of this kind of work this spring, as well as cleaning, dyeing, pressing and adding new collars and cuffs. Ancient Rome's Libraries.

The libraries of ancient Rome were immense and splendid. Lucullus, whose name is associated with table luxuries, expended much of his wealth on books. His library, says Plutarch, had "walks, galleries and cabinets open to all visitors." Julius Caesar proposed to open this library definitely to the public.

How were these vast libraries, in addition to the book shops, filled? With his trained staff of readers and transcribers, a publisher could turn out an edition of any work at very cheap rates, and almost at a moment's notice. There was no initial expense of typesetting before a single copy could be produced, no ruinous extras in the shape of printers' corrections. The manuscript came from the author; the publisher handed it over to his slaves, and if a book of modest dimensions, the complete edition could be ready, if necessary, within twenty-four hours. Actually, then, books were produced and sold more easily and quickly in ancient Rome than they are in modern London.—T. P.'s London Weekly.

The "Iliad" Not a Myth.

The fall of Troy after a ten year siege by the Grecian princes about 1184 B. C. has long been considered as a rather mythical foundation for Homer's immortal epic, the "Iliad." But in 1878 the excavations of Schliemann on the reputed site of Troy brought to light under the ashes of two superincumbent fortress cities the remains answering to the descriptions of Homer and a hidden vault containing goblets, bowls, vases, gems, jewels, arms de luxe and like articles in gold, silver and bronze. These treasures are now generally acknowledged to be the veritable remnants of the once vast riches of Priam, which, although depleted by ten years of costly warfare in the purchase of supplies and mercenaries and the final sack of the ruined city, were thus preserved to enrich the museums of Europe and greatly increase our realization of the wealth and art of that ancient Ilion which we have hitherto been disposed to consider a poet's dream.—Charles Winslow Hall in National Magazine.

Dickens' Literary Gains.

The papers have often printed a great deal of pure nonsense on the subject of Dickens' literary gains. Dickens is stated to have died leaving "earnings that often accrue to a respectable solicitor." This is rubbish. Dickens left $93,000 in round figures, and this did not include a considerable sum of money that he had settled some years before his death. His readings (1858-60) had brought in about $38,000. It is forgotten that Dickens began life without one penny and that every farthing he spent or gave away or left was earned by himself, only excepting £2,000 which was bequeathed to him by a friend about two years before his own death. Dickens lived liberally (some people said extravagantly) for about thirty-four years, he brought up and started in life a large and very expensive family, and he gave away a great deal of money to needy relatives.—London Truth.

Antiquity of the Senate.

The senate is historically much older than the lower house, or house of representatives, as it is called in our country and time. In the remote time, while as yet there was no such thing as a science of government, the tribe was wont to look to its old men, on account of their wisdom and experience, for advice in all matters pertaining to the tribe, and those old men were the first senators. The word senator comes from "senex," meaning old. As civilization advanced and seated government became a fact the senate continued to be composed of the old men, and when by and by the second chamber, or council, was added the senate continued to receive the larger measure of reverence and respect.—New York American.
