Deserted Village.

Tuesday was the most quiet Fourth of July this writer has experienced in North Platte and he has spent twenty nine of them here. The streets during the day were deserted, even the small boy with his fire crackers being conspicuous by his absence. Over four hundred tickets were sold at the railroad office to residents who spent the day out of town. Gothenburg was the most popular mecca for these pilgrims, over two hundred going to that place, including the band. One ball team went to Sidney, and the other to Ogalalla, and accompanying each team were a number of rooters. The day was hot and the average resident spent the hours of the heated period beneath the shade of trees. In the evening a number of neighborhood picnics were held on lawns.
The town was so quiet and the lack of Fourth of July patriotism so noticeable as to almost seem pitiful. Two or three thousand dollars which our people spent in attending celebrations in neighboring towns might as well have been spent at home, and would have been, had our people loosened up on their dollars in sufficient quantity to defray the expenses of a celebration.

The Fourth at Hershey.

North Platte was practically deserted on the Fourth, the crowd dividing between Gothenburg, Sidney, Ogalalla, Sutherland and Hershey. More than a hundred of our people went to Hershey where a splendid time was had. A quartet of male voices, Messrs D. W. Besack, Rev. Porter, E. W. Crane and D. J. Antonides, furnished the singing. Mrs. Crane presiding at the organ. Rev. Porter delivered the oration. Music was furnished by Hershey's fine little band. Foot, bicycle and horse races, ball game between Hershey and Sutherland teams, trap shoot'g, bowery dance and a good display of fireworks afforded entertainment enough for anybody and the best crowd caught up the spirit of the day and enjoyed themselves to the utmost. The proposed wrestling match, advertised for evening, was abandoned for lack of a crowd. The threatening storm driving most of the country residents to their homes early in the evening. The ball game was easily won by the Sutherland team who put up a good game, the home team being unfortunate and showed lack of practice. During the early part of the game a youngster in the bleachers was hit in the left ear by a foul ball, which checked the game for a little while. He soon recovered from the shock and kept out of harms way during the rest of the game.

New Telephone Manager.

Mr. E. C. Kelso, manager of the Neb. Tel. Co. for Grand Island, has resigned his present position as manager with the company, effective July 1, 1911. Within the next two or three months Mr. Kelso will go to North Platte and assume the duties of manager for the company at that point. During the intervening period, Mr. Kelso will remain in Grand Island and assist his successor in becoming familiar with his new duties. The North Platte exchange is one of the largest in this portion of the state and is a very important one on account of being located a considerable distance from the district office of the company, and on account of the man having charge of several smaller exchanges tributary to North Platte. The company has its plans all made and material ordered for building an entire new central energy system at North Platte, similar to the systems in use in Grand Island, Kearney and other large cities.—Grand Island Independent.
