The indications are that the city hall bonds will carry by a large majority. The friends of the proposition want to remember, however, that the law requires a three-fifths vote in favor of the bonds. They should not permit the proposition to fail by their failure to vote. Remember that the election occurs on Wednesday, October 4th.

Stamp-Kesler Wedding.

Last evening at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. H. Stamp, Miss Fern Stamp became the bride of William Ross Kesler, of Omaha. Rev. Geo. F. Williams pronounced the words which united in marriage these two popular young people.

The house was prettily decorated in pink and white flowers and colored candelabra. Thirty relatives and immediate friends witnessed the ceremony which was marked by its simplicity and impressiveness. It took place among a bank of ferns. Mendleson's wedding march was played on cornet and piano by Mr. and Mrs. Earl Stamp.

The bride wore a rich gown of white marquisette over white satin with trimmings of small satin rose buds, silver threads and heavy lace, made en train. Her veil was held in place by a cluster of Lillies of the Valley and she carried a huge bouquet of Lillies of the Valley and white roses. She was unattended.

Following the ceremony and congratulations a buffet lunch was served. The color scheme of pink, white and green was carried out in the refreshments.

The display of rare and costly wedding gifts was dazzling.

Mrs. Kesler is a North Platte product, having resided here all her life, and after graduating with high honors from the local school was engaged as one of the city teachers for a number of years. Of a bright mind and sunny disposition she gained and held the friendship of young and old alike and possesses the necessary qualities for an ideal home maker. The groom was formerly employed in the Western Union office in this city, but for a year past has held a lucrative position in Omaha. He is a spendid young man and very popular with all who know him. Mr. and Mrs. Kesler left at midnight for Omaha where they will be at home to their friends at 2642 Capital Ave., after Nov. 1st.

Y. M. C. A. Opening.

The formal opening of the Y. M. C. A. is set for October 5th, 6th and 7th. On the evening of October 5th there will be a literary and musical entertainment. On the 6th J. P. KEEPING DENTAL BILLS LOW

Economic Man Will Watch His Teeth Carefully and Keep His Teeth Well Cleaned.

In these days when prices are high on nearly every article that we buy it becomes necessary to watch closely the money that we spend, that we may get the greatest value in return, and nowhere will systematic care repay us better than the manner in which we look after our teeth.

He is an economical man who early determines not to lose a single tooth. The health reports clearly demonstrate that perfect mastication is not possible with diseased teeth.

We also know that artificial teeth, even at their best, are poor substitutes for the natural ones. Without perfect mastication of food, we suffer in comfort and in health. Money spent on the teeth proves real economy in the saving of fees paid to the physician.

In having our teeth attended to, we should have in mind the best that can be afforded. It is almost better to do without dental work than to run the risk of ruining the teeth with cheap work. We cannot buy good silk for seven cents a yard, and the same rule holds true in every business. After the initial expense of placing the teeth in good condition, we should endeavor to keep them that way. To do this, it is necessary to keep the teeth well cleaned and avoid any excessive strain upon them. If every one understood the value of regular visits to the dentist, every six months or oftener, dental bills would be much lower than they are. The rapidity with which teeth decay is appalling. The dentist, by the aid of his instruments, is able to detect decay where it is entirely unknown to the patient. By this early discovery the dentist is often enabled to insert a small filling at a minimum of pain, time and cost. Best of all, the small filling will outlast a dozen large ones.

Parents can economize in the care of their children's teeth by taking them to the dentist at the age of two to have the teeth examined. The first set of teeth should not be allowed to decay, but should be retained in good condition until the next set of teeth is ready to take its place. In this way the child will be saved pain, it will be able to thoroughly masticate its food and most important of all, the risk of irregular teeth will be largely avoided. Remember that one dollar spent in the mouth of a child is worth five spent in after life.

Finally, remember that external vigilance is the price of good teeth. If you notice anything wrong do not neglect going to the dentist at once. By so doing you will not only save yourself much trouble, but also much expense.

DANGER IN DECAYED TEETH

Because the People Do Not Recognize This Few Have Needed Dental Work Done.

In considering the care of the teeth, there is no subject of greater importance than the need of dental service. In Chicago some examinations of the teeth of school children have been made and so far 97 per cent of the children examined are in need of dental service.

Dr. William A. Evans, ex-commissioner of health of Chicago, in talking of the examination, says: "The major harm is from those decayed teeth being harbingers of bacteria that slowly poison, and as a result of that poisoning there is in many instances enlargement of the neighboring glands, and those glands stand as vicarious sacrifices protecting the remainder of the body from the invading poison. And there is nature's route . . . by which the poison finds its way into the interior of the body. It is relatively easy (for anyone) to see how teeth decay, and how accumulation of filth takes place in those decayed teeth. It is not difficult to see those enlarged glands . . . but it is far more difficult to understand why the child is pale and anemic. Absorption is taking place from these affected areas and the influence of that absorption is felt not only in the neighboring glands, but also in this group of physical conditions that are far removed and the relation of which is difficult to understand. It is not only difficult for the medical men to understand this, but it is far more difficult for the family to understand it."

It is a well-known fact that only a small per cent. of the people of the United States have the dental work done that the good of their physical and mental well-being demands. The percentage has been variously stated as from four to ten per cent. That is immaterial. We know it is low; we know that if all the dental work which should be done at once were to be presented to the members of the dental profession tomorrow, five times the number of dentists now in practice could not care for it properly.

The lack of knowledge concerning the evils of neglect is largely responsible for this condition. The members of the medical and dental profession know only too well the terrible havoc of decay, but the people who should be most interested in it the possessors of unclean, unsanitary mouths, do not know anything about it and do not manifest the interest they should.

Men who are always fearful of making big fools of themselves are seemingly unaware that the transformation has been effected by nature long before they even thought themselves capable of making the very thing they are so fearful of.

Fall Fashions.

FASHIONS change as regularly as the seasons. With the advent of Autumn you find yourself looking wistfully at the new fashions and styles in suits and overcoats now being displayed. Some men who have always worn "ready-mades" long to have their next suits or overcoats "tailor-made," but hesitate because of a fancied idea that the cost is greater. Not so.
