The efforts of the Omaha World Herald to convince republicans that Taft is a weak candidate is rather amusing. If, in fact, that paper considered Taft weak, would it raise its hand against his re-nomination? Well hardly.

Bryan endorses LaFollette as the republican candidate for the presidency in 1912, but he does not say that he will support him. It goes without saying that Bryan's purpose is to create as much factional feeling within the republican party as possible. It's politics to do so.

There is no excuse for republicans of Lincoln county playing and fast and loose with their county ticket, as the men composing it are the equal in every respect of their opponents if not superior. This being true, they should stand by their ticket.

Nebraska Opinion.

The newspaper men who have been combing Nebraska for expressions of opinion as to the way the state will go in its vote on presidential preference next April leave our borders with their sum of reliable knowledge not very much enlarged. But they report volubly on what they have seen and heard. They find an active movement in favor of LaFollette, and also considerable solid sentiment in favor of the president. On the farms they discover a considerable degree of hostility to Taft and friendship to LaFollette based on the reciprocity measure alone.

Now on the general stand of the two men and their relations to the radicals and conservatives it is easy to sympathize with the Wisconsin senator. But to give him support in preference to the president on the Canadian wheat question alone, as many farmers seem to be doing, is not a fair method of treating public servants for their official acts. President Taft went into the Canadian reciprocity act because he felt it would be advantageous for the entire nation. Senator LaFollette opposed it, we cannot help believing, because he looked at the immediate interests of a small fraction of the people. In selecting a president, do we want a man whose horizon is as wide as our national boundaries, or one who cannot see beyond the Wisconsin pulp mills and grain fields?

The Nebraska farmers may have real grievances against the president on other scores. If so, those things should be brought up for discussion. To defeat him on account his statesmanlike attempt to secure reciprocity would be an act of cruel injustice.—Lincoln Journal.
