

Let Us Remind You

You were one of the many, perhaps, who left the selection of Christmas Gifts to the last day of, perhaps, the last week in 1910.

And you were tired, and hurried, and dissatisfied, and vowed "Never Again!" Let us remind you. Let us invite you to make selections now.

Never before was our stock quite so varied and complete, and we would like you to see it while it is still unbroken, quietly, comfortably and at your leisure.

Any article will be put aside until you want it.

Moore Mitchell Killed.

Conductor Moore V. Mitchell was killed at Ogalalla early Thursday morning while returning home on an east bound freight. Mr. Mitchell and his brakeman Earl Lambert stepped off the train to cut a crossing, and while walking three car lengths Mitchell spoke to Lambert, who was on the opposite side of the train, and told him to wait and he would assist him. When Lambert reached the crossing he missed Mitchell and started in search and found him lying unconscious on the tracks. He called to the crew and engine men for assistance, and the injured man was taken to the caboose where it was discovered that one side of his face and head had been struck by a west bound freight, which was passing at the time. He lived about ten minutes but did not regain consciousness. The remains were brought to this city at four o'clock yesterday morning.

Mr. Mitchell was one of the best known and most highly respected citizens of this city and has been a faithful employe of the Union Pacific for many years.

His sudden death is a crushing blow to the wife and three small children to whom he was a devoted husband and father and it was with universal regret that word of the fatal accident was received.

Business is Good.

There is no cry of dull business at the new Weingand store, in fact the trade is considerably larger than was anticipated. Several things contribute to this condition—one is the fresh, new stock, another is the reasonable prices, another the reliable class of merchandise carried. Mr. Weingand has in stock a particularly strong line of suits and overcoats, which he is anxious to show probable purchasers, feeling confident that he can satisfy them in fit, price and quality.

If Mrs. Nettie Morris McNichols, alias Mrs. Lawrence Nicholson, who arrived in North Platte last May and is still supposed to be in this section will write Mrs. M. A. Morris at Buena Vista, Col., or Warwood Dudley, Johnstown, N. Y., she will learn something of vital interest to her.

During his absence the fire started and so rapidly gained headway that he was unable to remove any of the furnishings other than a few bed clothes which he reached by breaking the window. The house was a five-room frame, and there was an insurance of $500 on the building and $250 on the furnishings—about one-half the actual value.

On his recent trip east this writer paid an extra fare of ten dollars to ride in the eighteen hour train over the Pennsylvania road between Chicago and Philadelphia, doing this because he could save ten hours over the schedule of the regular express trains. The train averages fifty miles an hour, which is going some, but as far as equipment is concerned, the train does not equal trains No. 1 and No. 2 on the Union Pacific in luxury. The train, however, carries a barber, a stenographer, a maid in waiting, and a complimentary tea is served at 4 p. m.

After hearing the testimony on both sides Judge Grant found the defendant guilty. The case was appealed to the December term of district court and Johnson was bonded by E. M. Harrison.
