Hoagland for State Senator.

W. V. Hoagland, of this city, has filed for the republican nomination for state senator from this district. This action was not wholly volunteer on his part; his decision came after many, both in this county and in other counties in the district, had urged him to again become a candidate for the office.

In an address before the constitutional convention at Columbus, Ohio, Tuesday, Colonel Roosevelt among other things said: "The anti-trust law does good insofar as it can be invoked against combinations which really are monopolies or which restrict production or which artificially raise prices."

About twenty-five squares in the residence district of Houston, Texas, were destroyed Tuesday morning by a fire which started shortly after midnight and only checked at 10 Wednesday forenoon.

A rather peculiar condition exists in the mayoralty contest in Seattle. A year ago Hiram C. Gill was removed in disgrace as mayor by the recall system.

Down in Texas they seem to be getting rid of the negro as rapidly as possible. A dispatch from Beaumont states that within a short period of time thirty colored people are known to have been murdered.

It must be a little disheartening and disquieting to Senator La Follette to have so many of his former prominent supporters desert him.

William Hubartt Dies. William Hubartt, for thirty-three years a resident of this county, died Sunday at Bennett, Col., and the remains were brought here for interment last night.

They had seven children, five boys and two girls, four of the boys dying in October and November, 1883, of diphtheria. The living children are Mrs. Ella Knox of Springdale, Mont., and Emanuel and Mamie, of Bennett, Col., at whose home he passed away.

Funeral services were held at Bennett Tuesday afternoon.

THE ADAMS SEPARATION

By WINFRED COWLES
Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Mr. and Mrs. Adams, having concluded that marriage is a failure, agreed to separate. Mr. Adams owned the house, but Mrs. Adams owned the homestead in which she had been born, and she decided to go there to live.

Mrs. Adams departed on Monday and on Tuesday afternoon returned to her husband's house to procure some articles that she had forgotten. "Who are you?" she asked of the person who received her.

"The housekeeper." "Well, I'm Mrs. Adams. I have left some things upstairs in my room that I want." She brushed past the housekeeper, went upstairs, tried her bedroom door and found it locked.

"Not without Mr. Adams' order." Mrs. Adams was nonplused. She had not considered what it would be to find herself locked out of her own bedroom. Flouncing into the library, she threw off her wraps, unpinned her hat and laid it on a table with an air of one who proposed to settle herself and remain till the crack of doom.

"What is that to you?" "Nothing, but I thought it might be something to you since Mr. Adams told me he wouldn't dine at home today, but at his club, and he will spend the evening there."

"I will dine at home," said Mrs. Adams decisively. "I have no orders as to a guest at dinner; therefore I have not prepared anything."

"I'll not trouble you to prepare anything. Send Susan to me." "Mr. Adams has discharged Susan." "Discharged Susan! I told him to keep Susan."

"I thought you and Mr. Adams had separated." "Never mind about that. I don't propose to give up my house to your management."

She whisked off to the telephone room and shut the door. "Give me the Athenaeum club—I mean 4568."

When the club answered Mrs. Adams asked if her husband was there, and on being told that he was she desired that he be called to the phone; his wife desired to speak to him.

This was reported to Mr. Adams in the reading room. He noticed that the words wife and husband had been used instead of Mr. and Mrs. Adams. When he took up the receiver and was asked "Who is this?" he replied:

"Mr. Adams." "I'm your wife," was the reply. "Oh!" "I'm at home."

"Your home or mine?" "Both our homes. I see that I have scarcely left it when you have got in a housekeeper."

"Just so." "And she has refused me admission to my own room?" "Whose room?" "My room—mine, mine! Do you hear?"

"Oh!" "I'm going to stay here till you come home to dinner and let me into my room." "There isn't any dinner there."

"I shall order one sent in from Blakesley's." "For one?" "No; for two." "Who's the other one?" "You."

"Oh!" "Frank, I've come to the conclusion that this separation is all nonsense." "Nonsense?"

"I'm going to stay just where I am. I wish you to come home at once and discharge this housekeeper. I don't want her in the house."

"Oh!" "Well, will you come?" "Of course, if I'm sure of a dinner." "I'll attend to that."

Robert Dickey returned yesterday from Sutherland and Paxton, after spending several days on business.

ASHAMED OF HER FACE

"I was ashamed of my face," writes Miss Pickard of North Carolina. "It was all full of pimples and scars, but after using D. D. D. Prescription for Eczema I can say that now there is no sign of that Eczema and that was three years ago."

This is but one of thousands of cases in which D. D. D. has simply washed away the skin trouble. D. D. D. cleanses the skin of the germs of Eczema, Psoriasis and other serious skin diseases; stops the itch instantly, and when used with D. D. D. soap the cures seem to be permanent. Nothing like D. D. D. for the complexion.
