DIXON, The Jeweler.

The Seed Corn Special.

On Friday, March 12th, at 2:30 p. m., the Seed Corn Special, sent out by the Commercial Club of Omaha, will arrive in North Platte.

Accompanying this train will be Prof. H. J. Gramlich, of the Nebraska Experimental Station; Mr. O. Hull, of Alma; Senator E. P. Brown, W. P. Snyder, of the North Platte Experimental Station, and W. R. Mellor, Secretary of the State Board of Agriculture. The train will be here at least one-half hour, and, if possible, longer, and as this is the last point west on the Union Pacific that it will stop, we hope to hold it here for the afternoon.

There seems to be no question but that the seed corn this year is very poor and that to insure a good crop, it will be absolutely necessary to test the corn. Several farmers are doing this, in fact, several did last year, and there is a marked difference in the crops in every instance. However, it is the desire of the Omaha Commercial Club, as well as the North Platte Chamber of Commerce, to have every farmer test his corn and, consequently, these Corn Specials.

The Omaha Commercial Club is spending something like $7,000 in putting out these specials, and the only way we can show our appreciation is to have a good attendance.

The North Platte Chamber of Commerce is spending considerable money in advertising this special and would like to have every farmer in the county here.

Be sure and come. Be here promptly at 2:30, p. m., central time, and let us give the special a rousing reception.

Deputy Sheriff Watts was called to Hershey last evening by a message which stated that an attempt to hold up the night ticket agent and block signal man had been made by two masked men. The two gentlemen were riding down the track on a speeder and when about a half-mile from Hershey, were confronted by two masked men who had placed a log across the track, and told to halt. The log on the track did not block the course of the speeder and the men were able to reach the ticket agents house, where they secured arms and started in pursuit of the would be robbers. Losing track of them the two men returned to the house. A short while afterwards they heard several shots and discovered that an attempt was being made to break into the house. A chase ensued but the hold-ups, having quite a start, escaped, and no trace of them have been discovered, although most of the night was spent in the search.
