Spanning Death's Arch.

With Cole Brothers United Shows, due to exhibit in this city May 14th, will be found an act which has made other managers sit up and notice things since the opening of the season. It is termed "spanning death's arch" and persons who have witnessed it proclaim it a highly sensational and daring feat—one which seems to prove that its author, M'le Zizze, possesses nerve of steel. She is a winsome and petite young native of Lyon, France, who twice daily juggles with death in accomplishing an act, the like of which has never been attempted before by one of her sex. Mounting to the top-most pinnacle of a towering web like wooden inclined plane, this dauntless young lady seats herself upon an ordinary bicycle and before the surging mass of expectant humanity below can fully realize just what she intends to do she has started upon her frenzied flight. The bravest heart seems to cease beating for the moment, as machine and its charming rider near the earth, 30 feet from which both shoot upward and onward into space having left the curved end of the frail structure's first section. Like a bird on wing they fairly fly through the air, high over the broad backs of a herd of elephants, clearing a space of 55 feet and landing upon the last portion of the light wooden path. It is a wonderfully hazardous exploit and, as M'le safely reaches the ground smiling and bowing to the anxious spectators who crowd around her, cheer after cheer is given. This unparalleled deed of daring is given absolutely free of charge on the show grounds directly after the parade and again at 6:30 p. m. Even if you will be unable to attend the performance do not permit anything to interfere with your seeing M'le Zizze span death's arch.
