The Episcopal convocation, which has been in session in this city since Tuesday, is attended by a large representation of clergy and lay delegates from the various parishes of the jurisdiction. Tuesday evening an informal reception was held at the guild house, where the visitors renewed acquaintances with each other and met those with whom they were unacquainted.

Refreshments were served by a committee of the ladies' guild. Wednesday evening Rev. Shaw delivered the convocation sermon, which was particularly strong one. The day sessions have been given over to hearing reports, discussing plans for the future and general church work. Yesterday afternoon was devoted to missionary and guild work, excellent and interesting papers being read by several of the ladies. Last night a banquet was tendered the delegates at the Masonic hall, plates being laid for one hundred. This afternoon the visitors were to have had an auto ride but the rain made this entertainment impossible. The convocation will close with the service this evening, at which the choir will render the Easter musical program.

Special on Groceries

A great many people think that it is impossible to buy their goods of the home merchant and still keep within a reasonable expense. For this reason the Mail Order Houses are patronized to a great extent where the merchant at home should get the benefit of this portion of the business that is done in Omaha and Chicago. By selling for cash our price is so that we can compete with these places and when it comes to making prices on a bill of groceries that the ordinary family would send away for, we can sell as cheap as the Mail Order House and we have the quality behind our prices.

This not only gives the consumer the same value for the money, but saves the trouble of sending away and waiting a week or two for the goods.

We ask you to consider this bill, compare the prices with the Mail Order House and also come in and take a look for yourself.
